1 KILLED IN BIG AUTO CRASH

LECTURER IS DEAD, OTHERS HURT IN SMASH

One man was killed and sixteen passengers in a big sightseeing automobile were injured today when the car ran on a bank on Concord avenue, Lexington, and toppled over. The auto was making a tour from Park square to historic Concord and Lexington and was going twenty miles an hour.

Edward Boardman, the lecturer, died from a fractured skull on his way to the City Hospital at Waltham. He was twenty-eight years old and lived at No. 32 Pleasant View avenue, Everett.

Mrs. John J. Brown of St. Louis, a passenger, is at the Waltham Hospital with a broken arm and is suffering from a severe shock. The other passengers were shaken, but none was injured seriously.

Auto Turns Over.

The car, a double-deck automobile, was owned by Rockett's Taxi Motor Cab Company, No. 7 Park square. It makes these trips daily.

Today the car was making its usual time over the Concord road with Boardman telling about the historic route over which Paul Revere made a part of his famous ride.

When trying to pass two automobiles that were ahead of him, the chauffeur of the ailing sight-seeing car found himself abreast of the other two cars.

Fearing he might strike one, he ran his heavy automobile to the side of the road into a bank, and it toppled over.

The other two cars had been proceeding ahead of the sightseeing car for some time, one going more slowly than the other. Just as the sightseeing automobile turned to pass the first car, the machine in front turned out and the three automobiles were abreast.

MORRISON REPEATS BOYCOTT TESTIMONY

HARTFORD, Ct., Aug. 29.—In the hatters' boycott case in the United States District Court today, previous to Samuel Gompers' testimony, Secretary Frank Morrison of the American Federation was asked point blank if he still adhered to his testimony that the federation never prosecuted a boycott. He replied that he did, saying the federation approved or disapproved applications for a boycott by unions after efforts had been made to settle labor disputes without a boycott. He insisted the federation never placed a boycott on D. E. Loewe & Co., the open shop hatmakers of Danbury.

HOW LEADERS STAND.

The Red Sox are:
10 games ahead of Washington.
10½ games ahead of Philadelphia.
The Giants are:
5 games ahead of Chicago.
13 games ahead of Pittsburgh.

If there is any lingering belief that the Athletics—world champions of 1911—have a chance to win this year's pennant, today is the day when it can be expressed by a bit of rooting in Philadelphia when Connie Mack's "White Elephants" come to Boston for their last show at Fenway Park this year.

Ten and a half games behind the Red Sox, the Athletics are in Boston today, prepared to make their last stand here against the on-rushing American League leaders. Mack has saved up his great pitching trio —Bender, Coombs and Plank—for the last despairing stand against the Bostonians—and there'll be a fight to the finish.

In his heart Mack has given up hope of catching the Red Sox, but he will fight just as hard, and if fortune should favor him with the majority of the games he will start a new race from behind for the pen-

HEAVY DAMAGE BY ENGLISH FLOODS

LONDON, Aug. Aug. 29.—Incalculable damage has been caused by floods in all the eastern counties. In Norwich a considerable portion of the city will need to be rebuilt. In Norfolk eighty bridges were washed down and scores of villages are cut off from the outside world. Although many animals were drowned, very few human lives were lost. The forecast indicates a renewal of the rains and consequently the outlook is still serious.

PROTEST SUPPORTED BY ENGLISH PRESS

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Several of the London newspapers print editorials expressing satisfaction with the action of the British charge d'affaires at Washington, in presenting the British note protesting against the Panama Canal act and threatening to appeal to The Hague Tribunal for arbitration in the matter.

CHINA TRIES TO HUSH TUNGCHOU MUTINY

LONDON, Aug. 29.—The Chinese government is endeavoring to hush up the mutiny of eight thousand troops at Tungchou, according to a dispatch from Pekin. But the authorities have taken military precautions to protect all the roads leading to the capital. The mutineers have defied the Imperial troops sent against them. They are looting the adjacent villages.

MAN AND WOMAN DEAD FROM DRINK

Two persons, one an aged woman, were found dead in or near Woburn today from alcoholism. Mrs. Ellen McGourty, aged seventy, of No. 7 Buckman court, was found in bed. Samuel Kelly, fifty years old, employed on a farm across the Burlington line, was found on the door of the squash house.

ISOLINA CORCETTI, WHO CLAIMS FATHER DESERTED MOTHER

GIRL REFUSES TO KNOW FATHER

Sixteen-year-old Isolina Corcetti of Lynn told the police of the city today that she will not live with or obey a father whom she never knew was living till he accused her of being a stubborn child. All she knew of her father, Angelo Corcetti, she told the police, was that he left their home in Genoa when she was a baby and that she never saw him again till he recently found her in Lynn and told her to come home with him.

The girl was charged in Lynn District Court today with being a stubborn child. Her father, Angelo Corcetti, on whose complaint she was arrested last night, failed to appear.

The girl is not quite seventeen years old, so she comes still under the jurisdiction of a juvenile court. The case was continued to the Juvenile Court's session next Wednesday.

Isolina lives at No. 30 Melvin avenue, Lynn, with her brother Fred. The father lives in another part of the city. The girl's story, told to the Lynn police, is thus:

"I was born in Genoa. There was my father, mother and my brother and I in the family. Sixteen years ago, when I was seven months old, my father left Italy. I did not see him till recently. Seven years ago my mother died of a broken heart. My brother and I came here a year ago. When we had been here seven months we met our father, who ordered us to come to live with him. My brother is twenty-two years old and refused. I am working in a heel shop and support myself."

"I am Taft's Wife," Says Armed Woman Who Menaces Him

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 29.—A woman about forty-five years old and believed insane was arrested at the Southern Hotel as she tried to enter an elevator in which President Taft was ascending to go to breakfast. She gave the name of Carolyn Beers, of Greenville, O., and told the police she wanted to give the President a "sacred knife."

The woman had been seen about the Southern Hotel Wednesday, and when she attempted to enter the elevator was seized by two detectives.

"I am the President's wife," she told the detectives, "and I am following him to see that he is true to me. I have a sacred knife which I am going to give to him."

The woman was rushed to the city prison by the detectives in an automobile and when searched by the matron two ordinary pocket knives were found in the bosom of her dress. She continued to ramble and said that she had seen Taft at the Gibson house in Cincinnati last Fall and that he told her to go home and stay with her daughter. To quiet her the chief told her he would have the President visit her at the prison.

UNION ASKS THAT STATE BOARD GIVE CARMEN DECISIO

A committee from the street carmen's union, headed by their counsel, James H. Vaney, appeared before the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration today and asked that the board give a decision in the cases of thirty-four of the fifty men who ask to be reinstated by the Elevated Company.

Under the settlement, the Elevated is not obliged to reinstate men found guilty in court during the progress of the strike or those discharged for reasons having no connection with the strike. Twenty-three of the men were arrested during the early stage of the strike for slight offences. They were found guilty and unwittingly allowed their fines to be paid instead of appealing, thereby acknowledging guilt. The union contends that the Superior Court would have acquitted the men. Eleven others were discharged by the Elevated Company for misdemeanors having no connection with the strike. There are sixteen other cases yet awaiting trial in the Middlesex Court.

REBEL THREATENS TO KILL AMERICANS IN MEXICO AFTER 15TH

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 29.—After September 15 all Americans in Mexico will be put to death, according to a threat made by General Emilio Campa, who has an army of 400 insurgents in northern Sonora.

News of this menacing statement was brought here today by Thomas Holland, a former Texas Ranger, who recently has been foreman of the San Meno mines in Mexico.

It is believed Campa's threat was responsible for the message to General Steever from the War Department asking if more troops were needed on the border.

DENNIS J. COLLINS, ARRESTED IN THE DYNAMITE PLOT

SAYS POLICE SLEW NOYES

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 29.—Behind the death of Thomas Noyes, millionaire publisher and owner of the Washington American League baseball club, whose death a week ago was attributed to pneumonia, there lies a pathetic tragedy, which members of the Noyes family and the high police officials of Washington are investigating.

Charles Simbley, for thirteen years valet to the dead publisher, has made an affidavit that Noyes came to his death through having been struck down on the night of August 17, in front of the fashionable Farragut apartments by Policeman Charles M. Mundie. His story is backed up by two of the Farragut's elevator boys.

The policeman denies the story and says Noyes was injured in falling from a car. The policeman has left Washington on a leave of absence.

The valet says Noyes left his apartment at Seventeenth and I streets, at 10 o'clock the night of his death, and walked one block. He stood whistling when he was approached by Mundie, who protested against the noise, it is said.

Noyes had a life-long b'hist, known to all his friends, of raising his hand before speaking, and generally placing it on the arm of the person address d. According to the valet's affidavit, when addressed by the policeman, he raised his hand, and was immediately felled by a blow from Mundie's fist.

ARREST ONE, HUNT 3 MORE IN DYNAMITE INVESTIGATION

A tremendous sensation followed the report of the special Suffolk County Grand Jury today when it became known secret indictments had been found against four men, three of them said to be prominent in the textile world, in connection with the planting of dynamite of a high explosive character in Lawrence at the time of the recent big textile strike in that city.

The first of the indicted men to be arrested was Dennis J. Collins, a Cambridge dog fancier with kennels in Boston, who was charged with transporting the dynamite through the streets of Boston without a permit.

WARRANTS OUT FOR OTHERS.

Collins was held in $1,500 bail in default of which he was locked up in the Charles Street Jail.

Warrants were issued for the arrest of the other men. Police Inspector Lynch left the Court House to look for the men. It was expected the other arrests would be made today.

While the names of the indicted men who have not been arrested were not made public, those of certain men said to be the indicted ones were discussed at the Court House.

The indictment of the four men comes in a startling climax to one of the bitterest textile struggles that this country ever saw, and was led up to by a series of incidents that were amazing in their character.

Dynamite Found.

When the strike was at its height, and attracting the attention of the country, dynamite was found in three places in the distressed city—in a tailor shop, a cobbler shop and in a cemetery.

It was charged strikers had procured the explosive for the purpose of blowing up the mills unless the mill men gave in. The strikers indignantly denied the allegation and said the dynamite was a "plant" made for the purpose of injuring the cause of the operatives. The strikers won their battle.

Now the striking fact is disclosed that prominent men coolly sat down in Boston and planned the dynamite incident for the purpose of dealing a blow to the strikers.

Collins was indicted in two counts on the charge of transporting dynamite unlawfully through the streets of Boston on Jan. 20.

The first count of the indictment against Collins reads as follows:

Suffolk ss.

At the Superior Court begun and holden at the City of Boston within and for the County of Suffolk for the transaction of criminal business, on the first Monday of August in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twelve, the jurors for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts on oath present, that Dennis Collins on the 20th day of January in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twelve at Boston aforesaid then and there not having any license, permit or authority as required by law did unlawfully and illegally transport certain high explosives, to-wit, dynamite.

Second count:

That said Collins on January 20 in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twelve, at Boston aforesaid, then and there not having any license, permit or authority as required by law did unlawfully and illegally transport certain high explosives, to-wit, dynamite, in a certain automobile, to-wit, dynamite, with the intention that said explosive should be illegally carried and transported in said car.

The first count is drawn under the common law and the second under the Revised Statutes.

Collins Arrested.

Collins was taken to court yesterday and talked to the District Attorney. It is understood he declared he knew nothing about the case. Detectives sought Collins last night but were unable to find him. He went to the court house today to testify again and was arrested.

W. H. Rice, a quarryman of East Milton, was taken to the court house today by Inspector Lynch. He appeared before the Grand Jury. Shortly after he went into the Grand Jury room the indictments were reported.

District Attorney Pelletier was asked if the Grand Jury's inquiry was completed, so far as this case goes.

"They've gone, haven't they?" returned Mr. Pelletier.

"Well, for good?" he was asked.

"I understand," he said, "the court has exercised them till next Tuesday."

Collins was in the Grand Jury room today, following Rice, the quarryman, for about ten minutes. Inspector Lynch was seated by the door leading to the gate room.

When Collins stepped into the gate

Miss Bartlett Wins A Point in $100,000 Suit Against Lund

Miss Caroline S. Bartlett wants to know what Arthur G. Lund, a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery and a Western mining man, meant when he declared in reply to her suit for $100,000 damages for breach of promise to marry her that if he ever promised to marry her and refused to do so, as she alleges, that he was justified in his action.

Miss Bartlett asked Judge Morton in the equity port of the Supreme Court to order Lund to furnish specifications—or, in other words, details—of what he alleged. Judge Morton granted the motion.

Lund married a daughter of United States Senator Bankhead of Alabama last years. This precipitated Miss Bartlett's suit.

room Inspector Lynch rose and walked along with him, and accompanied him down the elevator. When Collins was out on the Pemberton square steps of the courthouse Lynch took him by the arm and placed him under arrest. Then Lynch took Collins across the square to police headquarters.

When the Grand Jury was ready to report two officers of the court were dispatched to find Judge Pratt. He was in the Judge's lobby. He went immediately into the first session of the Superior Criminal Court and ascended the bench.

Mr. Pelletier and the members of the Grand Jury appeared before Judge Pratt and the result of the investigation was reported to the court. The news that the report had been made and that four indictments had been found spread through the court house and created a big stir.

Pelletier Raps Attwill.

District Attorney Pelletier, who obtained the facts personally on which he based the charges he made before the Grand Jury, attacked District Attorney Henry C. Attwill and the Salem court for allowing John J. Breen, convicted for planting the dynamite in Lawrence, to get off with a $500 fine. He charges that Breen was "whitewashed" and that he should have been sent to prison for five or ten years.

The facts in connection with the amazing attempt to injure the Lawrence strikers, so far as they have been permitted to reach the public, are these:

Ernest W. Pitman, the Amesbury mill builder, and three other men, it is alleged, met in Boston and conceived the idea of planting dynamite in Lawrence and then charge that the strikers did it.

Pitman was selected to procure the dynamite. He got it from a quarryman at Quincy, it is thought.

John J. Breen, Lawrence undertaker and member of the school board, planted the dynamite in three places, where it was found. Breen informed the police where to find it, saying he had been "tipped off" by a letter.

Breen was convicted of planting the dynamite and fined $500.

Pitman, thinking this closed the dynamite incident, unwittingly told the conspiracy to District Attorney Pelletier.

Summoned before the Grand Jury, where he would be called upon to betray his friends, Pitman committed suicide Tuesday morning.

Lambert Hollander of Amesbury, an intimate friend of Pitman's, declares that the suicide contractor was "worked" into the plot by those he thought his friends. Hollander said:

If Pitman was in it at all, he was worked into it by others. If it had been me, I would have shot the others before I shot myself.

Pitman's father, in an interview at his West Somerville home, supported this assertion. He said:

My son shot himself simply because he had to choose between death and the betrayal of his friends.

It was stated that the "friends" to whom Mr. Pitman referred were the men to whom Pitman felt he owed his success in business. Pitman was a contractor of note and built two of the largest mills in Lawrence.

District Attorney Pelletier made this statement about Breen:

"A Whitewash."

It was evident there were men behind Breen. Breen was merely a local undertaker and of little importance. What possible interest could he have had in planting the dynamite?

Yet, there was a man who was deliberately endangering the lives of hundreds, who was ready when thousands were out on a strike, at such a crisis to split this State in two. And he was let off with a $500 fine.

He should have been sent to prison for ten years. It was up to the District Attorney of Essex County and it was up to the judge. Clearly it was a "whitewash."

Judge Brown declared that he could see no reason for the statement that his sentence in the Breen case had been a "whitewash." He said:

Judge Defends Sentence.

Breen was indicted on two counts. On that of conspiracy the jury found him not guilty. On the count of charging him with having planted the dynamite he was convicted. The fine —$500—was not a nominal one. I could also have sent the man to jail.

In view of the fact that Breen was cleared of the conspiracy charge, I finally decided that a fine was sufficient. The case troubled me for some time. I sentenced the man fairly, as far as I can see.

The men who testified Tuesday are George E. Kunhardt, of North Andover, treasurer of the Kunhardt mills; Ivor Sjostrom, treasurer of the United States Worsted Company; Frederick C. McDuffie, treasurer of the Everett mills; and Charles Walcott, treasurer of the Atlantic mills.

Secret Witnesses.

Two other witnesses who were brought in and questioned were guarded so carefully their identity was kept secret.

Breen refused to speak of the alleged plot.

"I have kept my mouth shut through it all," said he, "and do not propose to talk now."

He added, "it will all come out in the end and then people will see that I am not the worst man in Lawrence."

Just now Mr. Breen is preparing to make a fight against his recall as school committeeman, which will be voted on at a special election next month. His wife and children are summering in New Hampshire, and Breen intends to join them Friday for a few days, if not detained here by the Grand Jury.

FRIEND OF PITMAN SAYS DEAD MAN WAS "WORKED" INTO PLOT

AMESBURY, Aug. 29.—That Ernest W. Pitman, the Lawrence mill builder who shot himself after confessing to District Attorney Pelletier that he had had a part in "planting" dynamite in Lawrence during the strike, was tricked into the affair, was the assertion of Lambert Hollander, a wealthy retired manufacturer living here.

"I don't think that Pitman did furnish this dynamite," said Hollander. "But if he did I know he was 'worked' into it.

"If it had been I that had gotten into this, innocently, as I believe he did, I'd have shot those who got me into it before I shot myself."

It is Mr. Hollander's conviction that the Grand Jury summons, topping Mr. Pitman's financial losses, drove him to the brink of insanity.

Mr. Hollander told of his friend's many queer actions; of how he found him and persuaded him to come back against his will after he had wandered for days in the woods last May; of Mr. Pitman many times threatening suicide; of how he had recently warned Mrs. Pitman to be on the outlook; of how Mr. Pitman had suddenly asked him, over the telephone, a week ago Wednesday, to go to Europe; of how plans were completed Friday and the tickets bought in Boston Saturday morning.

Then Monday night Mr. Pitman telephoned that the trip was all off for the present and that he had to answer a summons in Boston.

Pitman had once told Hollander that he thought the crime of planting dynamite in the house of a poor person, unable to speak English and new to America, a most terrible one, even if such person had to go to jail but for one night.

At another time Mr. Pitman discussed openly what Breen's motive could have been. He severely denounced the act.

"I will gamble every dollar I ever see or had," exclaimed Mr. Hollander in the course of the interview, "that if E. W. Pitman ever furnished the 'stuff' or had anything at all to do with it in the slightest way, he had nothing to do with concocting the plot. He was not the man to have it in his heart.

"I don't believe Mr. Pitman did furnish the stuff, but he might have been worked into it. I thought after his summons and death, it might be possible that as a contractor he furnished the stuff.

"I have talked with Mr. Littlefield, see-

"I'D HAVE SHOT THE OTHERS FIRST," SAYS FRIEND OF PITMAN

CHAPTER XI

The New Filene Store

Enlarged Powers Must Make Us Bigger Than the New Building

BY expanding the policies and perfecting the methods which compelled the new building we shall aim to outgrow it. The sooner that comes about the sooner we shall know we have builded well.

Two ways were open when the new store was planned.

The obvious and easier was to extend mercantile lines far beyond present limitations of made-ready apparel. The other was to strengthen and broaden the lines to which we are committed.

We might have outgrown the new building before entering it had we included selling of goods-by-the-yard, upholstery, furniture and house-things generally.

We chose to proceed along paths familiar to us and to you—the providing of made-ready things to wear—eager to widen and parallel those paths so as to provide

Larger and more diversified stocks,
Better values,
Better service.

We might have crowded ten floors into the new house without building higher than the legal limit of 125 feet.

But cardinal principles of the Filene business are—

Right relations with right producing markets,
Right treatment of those who make up our organization,

and we regard low ceilings (with resultant lack of proper light and ventilation) as opposed to the second and third planks of this platform—opposed to the comfort of those who come to buy and those who are here to sell.

Eight above-ground floors and a spacious basement provide more than three times the old store floor space, with exceptional lighting and ventilating conditions.

For intelligent choosing of merchandise our lighting system is unusual. If apparel for day wear is to be chosen, unrestricted daylight is provided. Selection of clothes for evening wear may be made beneath artificial lights, either in the store at large or in dressing rooms.

What has been said of light and air applies to transportation.

Not only are thirteen elevators grouped, but some run slow, some stop at all floors, others run on express schedules. Each car has doors opening into cars adjoining. Should an occupied car become stalled between floors its passengers may transfer.

For weary shoppers or in case of illness wheel chairs are provided.

On every floor are spacious lavatories. Each of those for women is in charge of a matron.

Women shoppers may enjoy baths, manicuring, hair-dressing. Men and children will find barber shops of a sort not often encountered.

In the restaurants we shall cater to the best tastes—without asking exorbitant prices or permitting gratuities. Our kitchens will be clean as clean can be.

Breakfast will be served from 8.30 to 10.30, luncheon from 11.30 to 2, tea from 3 to 5.

A shopping bureau will assist those in a hurry or in doubt.

Another bureau will put store guests in touch with railway and steamship facilities, theatres, sports and motor service.

In a word, men and women may come here as to a hotel or a club, finding every personal service that either can provide during business hours.

Within a few days we will open the new doors and bid you come and be happy as we are.

PELLETIER ATTACKS ATTWILL

Raps Him for Allowing Dynamiter Breen to Get Off With a $500 Fine.

retary of the firm, and he said to me: 'E. W. Pitman Company never bought, sold or had anything to do with dynamite, nor did E. W. Pitman personally.'

Only last week Mr. Pitman said to Mr. Hollander of the time the latter found him in the woods: "If it hadn't been for you and Mr. Littlefield coming after me, three hours would have been the end of my troubles and losses. I had made up my mind I wouldn't live until the next day."

"Take Care of Family."

Mr. Pitman had asked Mr. Hollander to care for his family "if anything happens to me."

Mr. Hollander continued:

"On one occasion, I met him on the street, bound for Boston. He had his auto with him and I said I would like to ride up as far as Stoneham, but he didn't offer to take me.

"I saw him next in June. He had been missing from home several days. We had a difficult search for him about his Andover home, where I stayed and aided for several days. Finally a young man telephoned that a man answering the description was at a camp three or four miles from Andover.

"Mrs. Pitman, Mr. Littlefield and I drove out and finally found him wandering in the woods. It was a Friday of the first week in June. He didn't want to come home, but we finally persuaded him. He had been to several places, to Boston part of the time.

Spoke of Asylum.

"When we got him home, I understood his father wanted to send him to an asylum because he acted strangely. He had a doctor come from the McLean Hospital to examine him next day, but Mr. Pitman put his good foot forward and the doctor could reach no satisfactory conclusion.

"Mr. Pitman seemed better from then until about a month ago. Since then I've seen him once or twice a week and he's not as bad as before.

"He paid no attention to what anyone said, was self absorbed, gloomy and often spoke of financial losses. He lost far more than $50,000 when Blanchard & Company failed and took out him to the limit, because his brother Arthur was bookkeeper for that concern. The New York Tariceb Company had been a constant source of loss.

"He came down here a week ago last Tuesday to have some auto lamps fixed. After I had talked with him at the repair shop he came here to my house, where we found ourselves alone.

Not Feeling Well.

"He said to me, 'I'm not feeling well at all.' Said I, 'Ernest, I've noticed you're looking a little slow the last two or three weeks. What's troubling you?'

"He said: 'If you hadn't found me in the woods last May, three hours would have seen the end of it all. I had made up my mind not to live.'

"My wife and daughter arrived and asked him to supper, but he said he had an appointment and and me telephone his wife he'd be home at 7 o'clock. It was then about 6. I did so and arranged to see her alone at Andover five minutes Friday, when I told her what he had told me and found that he'd told her the same thing.

"The next day Mr. Pitman telephoned me he wanted me to come to Andover at once. I told him I couldn't, but would be over Friday afternoon. It was then he said over the phone: 'Well, how would you like to go to the "Passion Play"?'

FATHER SAYS PITMAN DIED RATHER TAHN BETRAY HIS FRIENDS

That suicide Pitman died rather than betray his friends by his evidence before the Grand Jury, is the firm belief of his father, John W. Pitman, of West Somerville. Pitman's death came after he had confessed to the District Attorney that he had had a part in the Lawrence dynamite plant. Rather than face a Grand Jury grilling, he shot himself, in the garden of his Andover home.

"I believe my son ended his life as the only course left for a man of honor," said the father, his voice shaken by emotion.

"There is no strain of insanity in the family," Mr. Pitman continued. "I know my son was worried about financial matters, but not enough to do what he did. From what I have learned since from the newspapers and other sources, and what I know of him, I believe that he killed himself rather than betray his friends."

This is the story of Pitman's suicide as his father related it.

"When my son met District Attorney Pelletier in Young's Hotel and told him about the Lawrence affair he apparently supposed that the conviction and fining of to commit himself my son was summoned. Breen had closed the incident. If he had thought that his story would bring the others before the Grand Jury, perhaps send them to prison, he would not have spoken. Then after he had been permitted to repeat his story to the Grand Jury.

"I can conceive but one explanation of what followed. My son realized the position he was in. He knew that if he went before the Grand Jury it meant the betrayal of his friends. Rather than do that he ended his life.

"I know he was friendly with several of the big mill men. He had built a mill for the American Woolen Company and also built the Ayer mill.

"I do not for a moment believe that he did what he did in a moment of insanity. There is no insanity in the family."

Mr. Pitman was asked about a man of the same name, whose actions resulted in the verdict of insanity some years ago.

"The man you speak of is not a member of my family," was the reply. "He is a very distant cousin, I believe, and not in our direct branch of the family.

"My son never said anything to me that suggested such a connection with the Lawrence strike," Mr. Pitman declared. "Of course, he may have spoken about the strike to me, but he never said anything about dynamite, or even hinted that he was involved in a plot."

5 P. M., or 11 P. M.—Which?

Boston folks appreciate having their goods delivered to their homes on time.

Some of them get their day's purchases anywhere from 9 P. M. to 11 P. M.—the result of tired horses; overworked men; too much territory to cover.

Others get their purchases before dinner. The goods usually arrive by motor truck, driven by an alert, enthusiastic young man—a good living testimonial to the progressiveness of a business house.

The reason these families get their goods on time is because the motor truck covers an area of territory five times that of the horse vehicle; goes over ground in one-third the time and, finally, because motor delivery is scientific delivery.

Alco motor trucks hold three non-stop records, which classify the Alco as America's greatest endurance motor vehicle. They deliver the goods safely; on time.

The business man who believes in service to his customers must be wise enough to look into the facts in the case of the Alco truck.

A letter or a 'phone call (Back Bay 3460), will bring an Alco expert to your place of business.

Alco Trucks are built by the American Locomotive Company

Says Dress Drags Down Girls

Tells How to Help Wayward

Mrs. Lappen, Court Officer, Describes the Principles She Works On.

By SYBIL WARNE.

Put your arm around the wayward girl, get her confidence and you can make a future for her.

Reform girls through good cheer and kindness.

Mothers! hold the confidence of your daughters.

Fathers! don't make home unhappy for your girls!

Too much dress and dance hall frivolities make girls wayward.

After an experience of seven years in the Roxbury Municipal Court, Mrs. Celia S. Lappen, probation officer in that court, holds to the above principles as essential in starting many a young girl in this city on a new future.

MRS. CELIA S. LAPPEN

"Put your arm around the wayward girl, get her confidence and you can make a future for her," says Mrs. Lappen.

"All these girls that come before me in the court are susceptible of kind words and treatment. Many of them have come to this city alone, worked for a time and then fallen into the bad company of other girls.

"If a young girl has not an attractive home, you must pity her. If she wanders out upon the streets at night and remains longer than she should, what great inducement has she to go home?

"There is often nothing in her home to make her happy. I have to be a mother to so many of these girls.

"Too much dress drags down many girls. They simply get crazed over a dress and will do almost anything, until they get it. Now such girls want some one to get near to them and to give them such helpful advice that will keep them ashamed.

"Then the ordinary dance halls are responsible for many girls going astray.

"There are not so many girls coming before the court as formerly.

"The problem is to get into close touch with the country girl coming into the city, often friendless and staying by herself, until she falls prey to some false woman companion.

"But this class of girls are improving. I have no hesitation in saying this. So many girls have gone on their way rejoicing through the probationary system. I have seen it work so well in so many cases.

GEN BOOTH BURIED AS LONDON MOURNS

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Inhibit scenes of heart-touching grief, the late General William Booth, partisans and founder of the Salvation Army, was laid to rest today beside the body of his wife in Abney Park Cemetery.

Burial of a dearly beloved potentate could hardly have caused a parallel to the pathetic exhibition of general grief and catafalque moved through the streets of London. As the procession moved by business was suspended.

The procession moved away from Thames embankment at 11:30 o'clock. Forty bands played sacred music as the procession moved.

BOSTON MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR BOOTH

Governor Foss and Mayor Fitzgerald are expected to speak at the memorial service to General William Booth, commander-in-chief of the Salvation army, at Tremont Temple, next Sunday afternoon at 2:45. The Rev. Dr. MacArthur, president of the Baptist Social Alliance, will deliver an address, as will Colonel Adam Gifford, commander of the Salvation army in Boston.

Alfaro Nacella of No. 20 Melvin street, Wakefield, is under arrest, charged with assaulting Tino with an iron bar. He was cut with a knife. Scores of employes watched the encounter. FRENCH TALKS ON SHOE CASE

United States District Attorney Asa P. French expressed considerable surprise today over the opinion handed down in the United States district court yesterday providing for a private hearing in the United Shoe Machinery case. Asked what the government intended to do, he said:

I cannot yet say whether the government will rest content with the opinion of the court in this circuit, excluding the public and the press from the hearings at which the testimony is to be taken under the bill in equity brought by the United States against the United Shoe Machinery Company, or will appeal from it.

The people will hardly be satisfied. I should suppose, with the decision of any tribunal save the highest court in the land upon a question which is, in principle, so vitally important to the administration of justice, and with respect to a claim of right which has never heretofore been questioned in any other court of the United States. It is impossible, I think, to exaggerate the importance and scope of such a decision. Few more closely affect the dispensation of justice.

A-chool the (A-chool) Sneezers(A-chool)Are in Session; A-chool

BETHLEHEM, N. H., Aug. 29.—The Sneezers, meeting here in annual convention, amused into the convention hall today for the second day's session. Officially they are the United States Hay Fever Association. But they are commonly and comically known as "The Sneezers," for reasons which are obvious.

This is their thirty-ninth annual sneezefest. Most of the thirty-nine years of the association's existence has been devoted to discovering a cure for hay fever. They are still at it.

The only known, sure remedy is the famous one suggested by Oliver Wendell Holmes, who recommended: "Six feet of clean gravel, six feet down."

President Guy Roberts of Bethlehem, the Big Sneeze of the association, opened the session with a sneeze. His remarks were received with long sneezes of approval.

CLARK FORESEES WILSON SWEEP

Champ Clark, speaker of the House of Representatives, stopping off in Boston between trains today on his way to Maine, where he will help whoop things up for the Democratic ticket, declared Wilson and Marshall would sweep the country this Fall.

The Speaker, who was a prominent candidate for the presidential nomination at Baltimore, said the Democrats this year have the men, the issues and the votes.

George Fred Williams, who was reported to have gone into the Bull Moose camp, but who denied it, met the Speaker and Mrs. Clark at the South Station and had breakfast with them at the Hotel Essex.

Mr. and Mrs. Grahame-White left Clapton to fly to South End. While in mid-air the motor of their aeroplane missed fire and the machine dropped into the water eight miles from Burnham.

A yacht put out and picked them up and then ran aground and nearly sank.

FOIL JAIL BREAK IN BECKER TIER

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—A daring jail delivery in the Tombs, where Police Lieutenant Charles Becker is awaiting trial on the charge of murder of the gambler Rosenthal, was frustrated by the accidental falling of a steel saw on the stone floor of a cell.

The big building quivered with excitement when hurrying guards discovered eight finely tempered saws and a bottle of muriatic acid, which will soften steel bars, hidden in the ulsters of four men, who occupied widely separated cells on the second tier.

The smuggled implements were unearthed in cells 292 and 299. The first is occupied by R. Trunbey and A. Pornsby. Trunbey is awaiting sentence for his part in a Brooklyn murder; Pornsby is to be tried for the murder of a Greenwich street jeweler. In their cells were four saws.

In the other cell, also having four saws and the bottle of acid beside, are Charles Ross and Charles Yates, who have a wide acquaintance in the underworld. These men are under sentence for stealing $80,000 in securities. While none of the four is known to be connected with the Rosenthal affair and the stories of graft and police connivance that followed it, consternation was created by the fact that Becker and several of his associates were within arm's length of the attempted break for liberty.

William J. Flynn, formerly deputy police commissioner and now in charge of the United States Secret Service in New York, was called before the Grand Jury today to tell of the gambling situation in New York as related to charges of police grafting.

The Grand Jury assembled to hear graft evidence today after an adjournment of a week. Considerable interest is centered in the summoning of Mr. Flynn, because he has been appointed by the aldermanic graft investigating committee and is doing its work.

HOBBLES AMUSE PARDONED LIFER

I don't like the women's hats, they are of such peculiar shapes. I do not like the hobble skirts. The women look as if they were strapped together.

Autos go too fast for me. I cannot understand all this noise on the streets.

The Elevated beats all.—Benjamin F. Taylor, seventy-two, after twenty-two years in prison.

Benjamin F. Taylor, who was pardoned by Governor Foss after serving twenty-two years of a life sentence on murder charge in the Charlestown State Prison, was surprised after gaining his freedom to see the great changes that have come to woman's dress.

In company with William M. Hogan and H. J. Mullen, he went sightseeing in Boston. He thinks that women look so odd. They have grown thinner and do not dress as prettily as they did twenty-three years ago. He does not like the hobble skirt, nor the women's hats that are generally seen on the streets.

The Elevated and the Washington street and East Boston tunnels made him gaze a long time at their construction. He thinks them wonderful.

Boston to him has greatly improved. The buildings look so much better. Automobiles surprise him. They go too fast for him. Taylor is now seventy-two years old and will be given a position as harness maker in Boston.

It was largely through the untired efforts of Hogan and Mullen, both of Cambridge, that the release of Taylor was obtained. For three years Hogan has worked constantly on the case and in person carried the pardon to the prison. He also secured a position for him.

"This Beats All."

"This beats all," was the way Taylor greeted the Elevated, as he sat within one of the cars and was taking in the sights on the streets below.

"I thought these cars were smaller. I never thought they were this shape. But they go fast, don't they? Do you ever fee, that they will fall off this track? What makes them go anyway?"

He was then shown the third rail and many things that have been explained to him. Then, when he passed along Atlantic avenue, he noticed so many changes. But the East Boston tunnel surprised him most of all.

"You don't mean to tell me that this is under water. Suppose this water would break loose we'd get a wetting."

Around the South Station, after leaving the Elevated, he turned aside and exclaimed: "You know the ladies queer to me, it's the women, why they look so funny. What's the matter with them? Why, when I went into prison the women looked attractive and they look as different to me now. I guess it's the hats, they are wearing. But my! their dresses are funny. What style do you call those tight skirts? They look as if they were strapped together. I'm not much a harness maker as I can't help feeling this way about them."

It was explained that these were hobble skirts.

He then stopped and gazed at one. "Well, they can like that if they want to but I can say this of all the women I have passed, I'm thankful that they do not think they can be compared with the women of twenty-five years ago or less.

"They seem so thin to me. I don't want to displease them by telling that all the women I've seen in the past three hours are not so pretty, as they were. But of course, I've seen nothing to them. I am simply telling my impressions.

"I don't like the women's hats at all. They are such peculiar shapes. I hope that I'm not dreaming, but I get used to all this after time.

"The autos look strange to me. I didn't think they could go so fast. They don't make much noise. But the trolley cars do. I cannot understand all this noise on the streets. There is so much of it. I should think more people would get deaf."

Sees Many Changes.

When in the Washington street tunnel Taylor just stood and gazed at the way the trains came and went from the station.

"There are great changes in Boston," he continued. "The buildings seem to be so much higher. I suppose that there are more of them.

"I could not recognize the South Station. I used to be a hack driver in that locality one time. Everything is very strange to me in that place.

"Now I want to say that there are four men to whom I owe my freedom—William M. Hogan of Cambridge, H. J. Mullen, Father Murphy, and Governor Foss.

BRANDEIS SEES HOPE IN WILSON

Louis D. Brandeis, the Boston lawyer who has led many fights for the people, says he is for Wilson for President "because he has the brains to lead effective reform." Mr. Brandeis had a two-hour talk with Governor Wilson at Sea Girt, N. J. Then he gave out this statement:

All Progressives, whether in the past they have affiliated with the Democratic or Republican parties, should get behind the Governor and assure his election. I am opposed to Roosevelt because the fundamental creed of the new party is to recognize, authorize, legalize and encourage monopoly. The Progressive party is trying to make legal what is illegal.

It is time for us to undertake to regulate competition, instead of monopoly, for our industrial freedom and our civic freedom go hand in hand. I am extremely sorry to see that so many good men, who are seeking only for the best things, have been misled into following the new party when they are confronted with an opportunity such as they never had before in this country. We have a wonderful opportunity before us to put Governor Wilson in office and to give him the opportunity of using his fine character and great attainments for the advantage of all.

A MILD, pleasing "Turkish-blend" that suits the American taste. If you haven't you probably will. 20 in plain package—that's why the price is only 15c.

FOSS GOES BY AUTO TO BARNSTABLE FAIR, WILL VISIT HYANNIS

Governor Foss went to Barnstable Fair today by automobile. He was accompanied by Major William I. Green of his staff and Captain Henry B. Crowley of the Ninth Regiment in uniform.

Late this afternoon the Governor goes to Hyannis to look over the site of proposed harbor improvements. Tomorrow he will cross over to Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket to view the sites of more improvement plans. Saturday morning he goes to Cascade Lake, N. H., where Champ Clark will be the chief speaker at a Democratic rally.

Governor Foss will also speak.

POLITICAL NEWS

The headquarters of the Bull Moose party are spreading out. An additional office has been taken and more stenographers are on the job. The Boston headquarters are now the thing for everything Rooseveltian in New England.

The new Seventh District promises considerable congressional fireworks in both parties. On the Republican side there are no more vigorous speakers than Senator Brandegee of Saugus and Representative Cogswell of Lynn. The field of four Democrats striving for the nomination includes good speakers also.

United States Senator Crane is expected tomorrow to get things moving in Massachusetts for the G. O. P. So far the Republican campaign in Massachusetts has shown little sign of life.

Massachusetts Democrats are in demand in other parts of New England, where Democracy is battling. Mayor Fitzgerald goes to Vermont tomorrow and will address a number of rallies Saturday. Judge Riley of the State Committee and Governor Foss have already been heard in the Green Mountain State. Next week Governor Foss goes to Maine and Mayor Fitzgerald will follow on Friday and Saturday.

It's a long time since Noddle Island has had a State Senator and the Democrats of Ward 2 district are lining up for Bernard F. Hanrahan, the only East Boston candidate in the primary contest. Hanrahan has had two terms in the House and has been active in party politics for the past two years.

Assistant Manager McAdoo of the Wilson forces is expected in Boston early next week to make arrangements for opening up 4 Massachusetts headquarters for the New Jersey executive. The National Committee proposes to make a very active campaign here, working in conjunction with the Democratic State Committee.

Senator James F. Powers of South Boston sends out his series of outings for the children of the district with six picnics next week, following which he will take the stump in his fight for renomination. Representative Hickey, of Ward 14, is opposing his ambition for a third term on Beacon Hill.

T. R. ASKS VOTES FOR METZGER

BENNINGTON, Vt., Aug. 29.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Bull Moose candidate for President, addressed a crowd of 5,000 enthusiastic men and women today at the baseball park. The colonel came here from North Bennington in an automobile and had breakfast at the home of Alexander J. Cooper.

At the park Colonel Roosevelt was preceded as a speaker by Fraser Metzger, the Progressive candidate for Governor. The feature of Roosevelt's speech was his appeal to the Republicans of the State to support Metzger at the State election next month if they proposed to vote for him in the November election.

"I have heard," said the Colonel, "that a lot of Republicans have said that they would vote the straight Republican ticket next month and then support me in November. That is not the thing to do. Vote the Progressive ticket next month. Elect Metzger."

Roosevelt referred to Aldrich and Penrose as trying to make out that he had tried to blackmail the Standard Oil Company. He characterized their statements as untrue.

Colonel Roosevelt spoke later at Manchester, Rutland and Middlebury and closes his first day of his three days' tour tonight at Burlington. He was met here by James A. Garfield, former secretary of the interior under Roosevelt. Garfield said that his information of the situation in this State was to show that Roosevelt would carry the State in November.

LEVERONI TO SING IN LONDON AGAIN

MILAN, Aug. 29.—Miss Elvira Leveroni, the opera singer of Boston, Mass., who has been singing at Covent Garden this Summer, and who has also been studying new roles with Andre Caplet in Paris, has arrived here for a rest before returning to America, where she is under contract to sing at the Boston Opera House. "It is so good to be back in Italy," Miss Leveroni said to a reporter. "I feel as if I was having a real Summer holiday at last." Miss Leveroni said that she had renewed her contract for next season at Covent Garden.

TAFT RECALLS TROOPS OFF FOR NICARAGUA

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Acting on orders from President Taft, the acting Secretary of War today recalled the orders directing the Tenth Infantry to proceed from Panama to Nicaragua. A sufficient force of marines, the President said, would be in Managua, the Nicaraguan capital, and Corinto, its principal seaport, early next week to insure the safety of American lives and property.

J. KEIR HARDIE TO SPEAK HERE MONDAY

J. Keir Hardie, founder of the British Labor Party and first Socialist member of Parliament, will reach Boston Sunday in his tour of United States and Canada. He will address a mass meeting Monday night in Tremont Temple on the labor, socialist and woman's suffrage movement of England. Professor Ellen Hayes of Wellesley has been chosen as chairman.

LILLIAN NORDICA AS SHE LOOKS NOW SHE HAS GOT THIN

PARIS, Aug. 29.—People lunching at the Ritz were surprised when Mme. Nordica entered looking so much younger and thinner that they scarcely knew her. Mme. Nordica sails for New York today. When an AMERICAN correspondent commented on her appearance she said:

"I may not have found the fountain of eternal youth, but I have discovered something pretty close to it—how to get thin, for fatness is not only the enemy of youth, but beauty as well.

"I've lost twenty pounds by a treatment which I have devised, which is so easy and comfortable that it seems absurd. I do not diet, nor do I exercise, nor deprive myself of anything. It is the easiest thing imaginable. Now, don't ask me to explain what it is. I will later on. I feel most fit.

"My concert tour opens with the Maine festival at Portland the first week in October. I am anticipating much pleasure singing with Schumann-Heink again. We will appear together as Isolde and Brangaene in Boston with Weingarten conducting."

HINT LORD TOOL IN BANK CASE

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 29.—Men "higher up," it was hinted today, may be arrested in connection with the alleged embezzlement of $40,000 from the New Bedford Five Cent Savings Bank, Cooperative Banks, of which Edgar Lord, treasurer of both institutions, who is under arrest, was only a tool in the hands of others, it is declared by some. Lord will be questioned in regard to these rumors.

The banks have elected a temporary successor to Lord. He is Charles H. Price, secretary of both institutions.

With the rumor of arrests of men "higher up," came the report that it will be found that a greater part of the money alleged to have been taken was used to cover up alleged irregularities incident to the issuance of stock of another New Bedford company. The bank directors are silent regarding this.

The bank examiners are amazed at the cleverness of Lord's system for covering his alleged operations.

The original defalcations, aggregating $3,500, made nine years ago, are said to have been covered by old notes that had been discontinued. One specific transaction is that involving a note upon which the bank was compelled to foreclose. After the property was sold and the business settled with the creditors, a note for $1,500, and the mortgage, the latter canceled, was left in the bank. The note, which had not matured, was properly witnessed and attested and there was the record of a vote of the directors approving the loan, made when it was originally negotiated.

Admits Six Others Died in Hotel Where Young Governess Did

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Mrs. Reinhold Busse, wife of the proprietor of the Boulevard Hotel, Broadway and Sixty-seventh street, where Miss Julia M. Curran, the young governess, was choked to death last Thursday evening, has given out a most remarkable statement, which she called a defence of her hotel.

"The record of the hotel is clean, compared with others," she declared. "Why, I know of a hotel not far away from here where they carry their dead through the ash-hoist, and always get away without any scandal. They are not going to job me, even if they want to, and they can never prove we killed people here or gave them knockout drops."

Wife's Blood Saves Harry Aubrey, Former Boston Ball Player

BALTIMORE, Aug. 29.—Mrs. Harry Aubrey, by submitting to the transfusion of her blood, saved the life of her husband, the ball player, formerly of the Boston Nationals and now of the Worcester, Mass., team. They both have the skill of Johns Hopkins Hospital surgeons to thank for his life.

Lying side by side on the operating table the transfusion went on for an hour, until Aubrey was considered strong enough to stand an operation. He had a tumor which had been bleeding profusely and went to the hospital nearly dead.

It was a certainty that without the transfusion he could never have survived.

Great Trotters in Turf Battle

Baden Is Favorite in Big Race

TODAY'S PROGRAM.

"The Massachusetts" 2:12 Trot—$5,000.

"The Pilgrim" Three-Year-Old Trot—$2,000.

2:07 Pace—$1,200.

By EARL W. FARNUM.

Leading stake trotters of the year will clash at Readville this afternoon in the third day's racing of the Grand Circuit meeting. Chiefly because Baden has won more money than the others, and is primed to annex the major portion of the $5,000 Massachusetts, there is every prospect of one of the most bitterly fought turf battles of the year.

In the Pilgrim, for three-year-old trotters, Graham Bellini of the Havis James stable, may win, and there is some indication that the race will wax warm and merry before he does the trick. Manners will count for a good deal in this event and the splitting up of the purse money.

Fireworks will show in the 2:07 pace, filled race of the card. There are several eligibles with nothing to step at least one heat in 2:05 or better and one of these will probably be forced out of the class to win. Eddie Dillard is the most likely wiggler to get the 2:07 class diploma this afternoon. He is in the stable of W. L. Snow, the Hornellsville, N. Y., trainer.

Baden, Graham Bellini, and Eddie Dillard will be an extremely interesting trio to watch during the afternoon in their respective races, but not one lays over a field enough for admirers to feel at all sure until after final heats are over.

Big Card Today.

From top to bottom this afternoon's program is more alluring in its promise of strenuous struggles than any other day's racing of the week. Popular interest is strong in the Massachusetts biggest plum of the meeting with the exception of the Derby handicap.

Baden, owned by Louis Neidhardt of Jersey City and driven by A. B. Rodney of Lowell, has a field to cope with in which the eligibles are Esther W., very fast but flighty trotter of the late Walter Cox estate; Dillon, W. L. Snow's Oakdale, Tommy Murphy's Marigold, Ed Geers' Dorsh Medium, The Wunderer, Annie Kohl, Derby Boy and Shawbaw.

Esther W. and Oakdale are the pair most likely to cause Baden trouble. Derby Boy and Marigold are also to be reckoned with, at least, in the hustling for honors of the $5,000 purse. Dorsh Medium may find the going a little too stiff to figure prominently in the money.

Jimmy Carpenter's Annie Kohl, a Derby disappointment, may not start today. The disappointment may not herself Tuesday, and if given a start today it will be something of a surprise if she races in her best form. Shawbaw, winner of a grand circuit race in 2:07¼ before he shook the big field to race New York State half-mile tracks and turn a two-lap in the sensational time of 2:10, is not expected to start. If in the race, he would be one likely to show something sensational.

Baden Is Fastest.

By the records, Baden is fastest of the field as he has raced in 2:06¾. He is the leading money-getter of the grand circuit this year and has earned to date $14,700. A week ago at the Rockingham fair he won the $5,000 stake, his fifth winning race of the year. He has had eight starts this season.

In a five-heat affair at Cleveland, Oakdale won with Derby Boy second and Marigold third, and the time no faster than 2:09 and a fraction. When Baden took his record of 2:06¾ at Buffalo in the King George $5,000 stake, Esther W. secured second money and Oakdale took the third division of the spoils. It was a six rod trotting and today's feature may be in just as many chapters.

The three-year-old trot has a big bunch of eligibles but it is not probable an unwieldy field will face Frank Weiser for the word. The eligibles include The Earnest and Graham Bellini, owned by Rodney Mackenzie, the Winnipeg sportsman who also owns Joe Patchen II., the Western colt, Set De Forest, which was second to Brighton B. over Rockingham track in 2:12½; W. L. Snow's Senorita, which won The Tyro of Rockingham in the slow time of 2:20½; the Prodigal, filly of Caddo Belle, which will probably have the benefit of Walter Cox as driver; the Montana colt, Brook King, Lon McDonald's Black Peter and Texas Sail; the Allen Farm gelding Benson; Tommy Murphy's Axworth, Henry B. Rea's Sister Maskie, the Irish colt, Lord of Quality; Cochato B., Peggy Belle, Benear, Baron Scott, Trampsome, Grace Flagler, Dreamwold Dugald, Dock C., Baron Dexter and Dublin Lady.

Winner Must Go Some.

The winner will probably have to step right around 2:11 or better. Caddo Belle worked in 2:10¾ at Buffalo. Graham Bellini raced in 2:11¾ at Cleveland in the second heat of the race won by Adios. Caddo Belle looks like the one to give Graham Bellini the stiffest battle. The red banner may do business in the first heat.

The circuit followers fancy Eddie Dillard should be up to beating the others in the 2:07 pace, in which the eligibles are George W. Newton, Tommy Murphy's Longworth B., Ed. Geers' The Assessor and Early Thacker, Walter Cox's Baron Axmud Sarah Ann Patch and Valentine's George Penn.

George Penn developed stiff lameness while jogging the other day and probably will not start this afternoon.

Cox will probable start Baron A. and should get as good a second money with the son of Baron Medium. The Assessor is due to get a portion of the purse. Eddie Dillard is very likeable on the strength of his rousing second at Buffalo and lapped on Gold Seal in 2:03¾. He is surely threatened with winning this afternoon.

It was a close approach to some record shattering in both the Plymouth and the Blue Hill at Readville yesterday afternoon. After Nowaday Girl had reduced her record from 2:04½ to 2:14¾ to win the first heat of the Plymouth, the race developed into a battle in which two sons of Axworthy were the real contenders.

Dillon Axworthy was very persistently chased out by Nathan Axworthy in both the second and third heats. All the fractions between 2:14 and 2:15 came into play in hanging out the three heats.

Zinn Blocks Yanks' Deal for Lelivelt

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Outfielder Guy Zinn, who until a few days ago was a member of the New York Americans, has blocked the deal by which he was traded to Rochester of the International League in exchange for outfielder Lelivelt. Zinn refuses to report to Rochester. Rather than go back to the minors, he will retire from baseball, he said.

As Manager Gansel of the Rochester team needs an outfielder badly, Manager Wolverton has sent him Fred Smith, a young player recently procured from Brockton in an exchange for outfielder Maloney. Smith will be loaned to Gansel pending further developments in the Zinn-Lelivelt deal.

Marion Agassiz Escapes Injury in Fall When Horse Hits Top Bar of Hurdle.

A throng of three thousand society folk flocked to the Magnolia Horse show at Crescent Beach and watched the contestants, who included some of the best known debutantes in the country. Off the beach lay many yachts and smaller craft, and spectators gathered on the decks of these also.

The society folk applauded victories impartially, thrilled at the hustling and gasped with horror when Miss Marion Agassiz on her gelding Searchlight, came to grief. The horse struck the top bar of a hurdle, and fell sprawling, throwing his rider ten feet away. She arose, however, unhurt, even before help reached her, and resumed her seat on the horse.

The hard stand on the beach served as the ring for the show, and, when the title had receded, as a track for races. The twin daughters of Governor Foss, Misses Esther and Helen, were among those winning cups. The two daughters of Secretary of the Navy Meyer, Misses Alys and Julia, were also among the participants. Miss Elizabeth Bigelow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Bigelow of Boston, won three cups, and Miss Phyllis Sears and Miss Mary Curtis were other prize winners.

The combination class, horses in harness, then unharnessed and shown in the ring, was the first called and Lady Lightfoot, the handsome chestnut mare, owned and ridden by Miss Elizabeth Bigelow, took the cup. Others competing in this class included Miss Esther Foss, who rode; Maurice Dimond's Caprice; William B. Miller, who had two horses entered; Miss Alys Meyer, Miss Alice Thorndike, Miss Margaret Walker of Detroit, Frederick Hostetter of Pittsburgh, and John Cogswell, Jr., of Boston.

In the thoroughbred type class Joseph Flanagan of Natick, riding E. Jared Biles's Rose O'Sharon, won the cup. Miss Mary Curtis, Miss Phyllis Sears, Miss Alys Meyer and Miss Alice Thorndike were others showing in this class.

The children's saddle class was a pretty feature. The little Miss Kathleen Sheriff of Chicago, the youngest rider in the show, took the cup in the first division, with her bargain young son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Harry Brown, won the second prize on his show mare, Nellie Bly.

In the ladies' saddle class, the cup was won by Miss Helen Foss, and a special trophy was awarded to Miss Elizabeth Bigelow. Others in the class were Miss Julia Meyer, Miss Margaret Walker of Detroit, Miss Gail Stevens and Miss Alice Thorndike of Boston, Miss Elizabeth Paine of Chestnut Hill, Miss Mary Curtis of Boston, Mrs. Maurice Dimond of Brookline and Mrs. E. W. Clark of Palisades, N. J.

WATCH FOR LIST IN VOTE CONTEST

The winners in the AMERICAN'S baseball contest will be the envy of all New England fans when the Red Sox are batting it out in the World's Series Championship games.

It promises to be the greatest baseball entertainment ever held in the history of the sport, and the candidates in the AMERICAN'S contest will do well to crowd on all possible steam to insure being among the twenty winners when the polls close.

Next Sunday will be an important milestone in the race, as the new vote list will appear in Sunday's AMERICAN and will show where each candidate stands in the running up to yesterday morning at 12 o'clock.

The contestants must not sit idle and wait for this list, because the Contest Editor has promised a daily vote standing next week, if space will permit. This means that no candidate's position is secure for longer than twenty-four hours.

It is not necessary to be first in order to win one of the free trips, as twenty New England fans will be adjudged winners and the twentieth prize is just as valuable as the first.

NEW RULES TO HELP PLAYERS

CINCINNATI, Aug. 29.—To give the minor league clubs and the ball players themselves a chance to prosper, the National Commission has shut down on the owning by big league clubs of armies of young ball players, which cannot be used in the actual race.

In giving out the annual list of players purchase from minor league clubs, the commission gave warning to club owners that hereafter the commission will strictly enforce the rule which requires that the transfer of a player by or to a major league club for immediate or future delivery, must be submitted to the commission within a reasonable time.

A regulation has been enacted by the commission to facilitate the enforcement of the national agreement, restricting the number of players a major league club may carry on its annual reservation list to thirty-five, exclusive of the manager and of the players promulgated as ineligible.

The commission also promulgated a finding imposing a fine of $200 on the Brockton club of the New England League, for, as the commission asserted, "deliberately deceiving the commission by twice assuring its chairman, over the signature of the club's president, that the claim of Player Bennie Kauff had been adjusted." Kauff's claim of $75 for salary and $12 for transportation was allowed.

The list of players whose releases have been purchased by major league clubs from minor league clubs since August 20, 1911, does not include players recalled by major league clubs August 20.

YOUNG DONAHUE AFTER BRITTON

Young Donahue, the clever Roxbury lightweight, is on the warpath. He is out to win new honors in the ring and is particularly anxious to get a crack at Jack Britton, who knocked out Eddie Murphy at the Pilgrim A. A. Tuesday night, in discussing his plans for the future Donahue said:

"I am now in the best condition that I have been in for a long time and I believe that I could hold my own with any of the leading lightweights in the country after I have had two weeks' training. New England fight 'fans' were greatly surprised when Jack Britton slipped across a dream punch on Eddie Murphy. They hated to see one of their best local fighters go down to defeat.

"I myself would like to get a bout with this Britton person and I am sure that I would prove his master. It is true that I have met about all the 'headliners' in the lightweight class and I have yet to be sent to the canvas for the count."

Pilgrims and Giants Double Games Monday

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 29.—President Treasurer James E. Gaffney of the Boston Nationals has sent word to Manager John G. Kling that the Pilgrims and New York Giants will engage in a double-header in Boston on the afternoon of Labor Day, instead of playing morning and afternoon games.

President Gaffney has arranged this change in the schedule so as to give all those who wish to take part in or see the Labor Day parade in the morning, the chance to see the Giants, the National League champions, in the two games on the holiday. This will be welcome news to all the baseball fans.

These games with the one scheduled for Tuesday will mark the final appearance of the Giants in Boston until the post-season series with the Red Sox. Manager McGraw will likely pitch his two great box artists, Mathewson and Marquard, although it is possible that Tesreau, who has been such a standby for the Giants recently, will officiate in one of the games. Hub Perdue, the Boston's best pitcher and either Ed Donnelly or George Tyler will do the slab work for the Bostons.

BIG ENTRY LIST FOR CITY GAMES

Plans for the final athletic games of the Municipal Athletic Association which will be held on Franklin Field, Dorchester, Saturday, at 3 p. m., were perfected at a meeting of the association, yesterday.

Over 400 entries have already been received, sixty or more having been contributed by the various playgrounds of the city.

With such a sterling squad of youthful athletes ready to strive for athletic honors, there is no doubt that each of the events in all three divisions will be marked by keen competition and close finishes.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE.

At Buffalo—Providence, 6; Buffalo, 5 (10 innings).
At Rochester—Rochester, 7; Jersey City, 3.
At Toronto—Toronto, 8; Baltimore, 4, (first game; Baltimore, 4; Toronto, 0 (five innings by agreement).
At Montreal—Newark, 5; Montreal, 4 (first game, 10 innings).

Announcing the New Filene Automatic Bargain Basement Store for Men and Little Brothers

Filene's

Outfitters to Men and Boys as well as to Women and Girls

ALWAYS it has been a matter of regret with us that space limitations have prevented the selling of Men's and Boys' Apparel in the old Automatic Bargain Basement Store.

For we have felt that our Automatic Price Reduction System is one that must appeal strongly to the business instincts of Men, Young Men and even Boys.

We know of nothing like it in the world.

And yet it has been a success from the beginning—a success so pronounced that we feel justified in devoting to our Automatic Bargain Basement Store five times the floor space in the new building that it had in the old.

Mr. Man, old or young, doesn't that strike you as a rather interesting business situation?

And don't you think it will be worth your while to come around and investigate this system of merchandising?

Automatic Reduction Plan

Here is an example of what will be going on day after day in the Men's and Boys' Basement Store:

Lots put on sale today at $5 each (for instance) are marked down automatically (if not sold) 12 selling days later to $3.75, or 25% reduction—and automatically reduced again (if still here) 18 selling days later to $2.50, or 50% less than the original price—

24 selling days later (if not all sold) this merchandise gets a final automatic reduction to $1.25, or 75% lower than the first price—

If this does not move it, at the end of 30 selling days we give away to Charitable Institutions the remnants of the lot.

AN ALL-MEN'S STORE IN AN ALL-NEW WAY

Now, this means one thing first of all:

The original purchase price must have been very much below normal or we would not have dared subject the merchandise to the automatic system of reduction.

First Price Right

There is the keynote of our automatic reduction system—the first price must represent very extraordinary value.

Manufacturers, jobbers and even retailers are coming to us constantly with offers of goods at sacrifice prices.

Two things bring them. First, their knowledge that we will buy any right merchandise if the price is low enough. Second, that we pay cash for all basement merchandise within 48 hours after it is delivered.

Here is one place indeed where "money talks."

Not only do we buy basement merchandise for cash only, we sell it for cash only.

Goods Must Be Right

The same system of guarantee applying to merchandise in the upstairs sections of the store applies in the basement. Merchandise must be as represented or it may be exchanged, or redeemed for cash.

If the purchaser desires to exchange basement merchandise for reasons other than unworthiness, a time limit of 48 hours after purchase is placed upon such transactions. This is necessary because of the losses that would result to us otherwise in automatic price reductions. Returned merchandise will be taken back only at the reduced price, if an automatic reduction has taken place in the meantime.

Our basement stock for Men and Boys in the new building includes Suits, Overcoats, Hats, Shoes, Neckties, Underwear and Furnishings of all sorts.

These will be seasonable.

The Filene Basement Store is not and never will be a dumping ground for obsolete or damaged goods.

These goods will not be scattered about the basement store, interspersed with apparel for women and children, but each line will be classified for quick selection.

The new basement store is bright, cheerful and airy, its ventilating system insuring a complete change of air every six minutes.

A special feature of the service will be quick change and quick delivery of packages.

Come and See

We invite Men and Boys to come and visit the Basement Store. Every day is not too often. Some prices are lessened each day. And new lots arrive daily.

On a Thursday it may be Sample Shoes straight from the factory. On Friday the prize may be a lot of fine Suits for Men that some retailer or jobber found to be too good for his trade.

Whatever it is, it is sure to be marked at less than its value, and, however good, it must sell within 12 selling days or be marked down 25%.

Assuredly this is a new kind of store for Men and Boys. We expect them to like it as well as their mothers and sisters have liked its predecessor.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug 29—The Boston Pilgrims, minus their pick, are in town, prepared to give the Quakers under Red Dooin something to worry about for the next three days. The Pilgrims are now in the race with the Athletics and Senators for the American League pennant, and they are going to make a strong effort to win the series from the Phillies. Creative Power

A celebrated engineer, being examined at a trial where, both the judge and counsel tried in vain to browbeat him, made use in his evidence of the expression, "the creative power of a mechanic," on which the judge rather tartly asked him what he meant by "the creative power of a mechanic."

"Why, my lord," said the engineer, "I mean that power which enables a man to convert a goat's tail into a judge's wig."

Beauty Secrets of Footlight Favorites

SIMPLE AIDS FOR THE COUNTRY MISS

MISS ETHEL DONALDSON

(One of Ziegfeld's charming members of "The Winsome Widow" Co.)

By ETHEL DONALDSON

I DON'T believe that any girl on the stage worries about her looks when she's well and happy and not working too hard in a play that she likes, where the ghost walks regularly with well-filled pay envelopes. But when you're out in Pocatello, miles and miles from home, with months of one-night stands behind you and the same before you, and only what the hotels out there call plain cooking to sustain you, well, that's the time when you get out all the secrets of beauty that you ever heard of and try them on yourself if you've got that much energy left.

It was the first time that I ever got to one of those [illegible] where we had played [illegible] and had an evening performance and a twenty-four hour jolt on the railroad to look forward to that I decided that the home folks who had said I was a pretty girl were very much mistaken. I took [illegible] in one of the cracked two-by-four dressing room mirrors, and decided that I would try first aid to the beauty seeker.

I found a modest little sign swinging over the door of a modest looking house, which announced that Miss O'Brien was disposed to do facial culture. I filled the name O'Brien and trusted that she was disposed to "culture" me.

A Motherly Soul

Miss O'Brien was a[illegible] and more than I expected. She was a fat and motherly soul, and after she'd looked me over she said:

"Let you young to begin with beauty doctors, but I'll give ye one of these here little wooden things for to massage yer self with, and when yer tired, you just remember what old Miss O'Brien told ye.

"Food first of all, and then rest, if ye can get it. Then water and soap, like this."

Then she began her beauty culture and as it's the only kind I've ever tried, and the kind I'm going to stick to, I'll pass it along to you, for dear Miss O'Brien lives so far away that it won't interfere with her trade.

She began by washing my face with warm water and a cosey piece of Turkish towel; after that she soaked some more of the toweling in the juice of a cucumber which she kept in a glass jar, and which was nice and soothing, if a little sticky, on the skin.

Without washing this off, she rubbed quite a lot of cold cream over my face, and then produced four or five little balls of different sizes, some not larger than marbles, and the biggest about the size of an early Bermuda potato. They were made of plain wood, and polished but not painted.

She used the large ball for my neck, chin and cheeks, rubbing it quickly over the skin and pressing it with the palm of her hand. When she was through with that she took a ball of smaller size, ran it up and down the crenses on the side of my nose until I felt that all the blackheads were being ironed out, and [illegible] the eye, and [illegible] and [illegible] the eye, but never touching the eye itself. I had almost fallen asleep when she began to [illegible] forehand, for which she used a larger ball again, rubbing out the wrong and tired look which had begun to make me appear years older than I really was.

The Final Touch

After she had gotten all through and wiped the cream away, and then applied hot water again to my face and more cucumber juice, but this time it was scented with cologne and wasn't sticky.

When I got through with my face treatment I felt like a new person, and I'm sure I looked like one. Dear Miss O'Brien seemed as delightedly as if she had accomplished an important feat.

Of course, I bought the little wooden graduated balls and some of Miss O'Brien's cucumber stuff, and some of her cream. The last two I used up long ago, but I find that I can always employ any other good cold cream and lotion instead.

I massage my face as she told me to whenever I am tired, and find that it is not only great fun to do it, but that the results are always very encouraging, and that after one of these treatments I look much refreshed, and feel much happier in consequence.

Thankful

And so this is the end," said the hero, as he bent over the form of the dying heroine, while the orchestra played soft, sad music.

"Thank heaven for that!" exclaimed a heartbroken voice from the gallery.

"I have used Eckman's Alterative in several cases of tubercular glands of the neck, with excellent results every time. In one case it cost me $50, for the girl was put on it early until she could arrange to be operated, and in a few [illegible] an operation was not needed. I suppose [illegible] are just as long as I could. You know my faith in it." [illegible] of [illegible] a letter on file.

How to Build a Fortune

By THOMAS TAPPER

NO. 7—GETTING RICH IN A HURRY

I.

THE statement has recently been made that in one year the American people contributed about seventy-seven million dollars of dollars to various fake-investment schemes. This means that they dropped the money down a hole, expecting it to rush up again in a golden shower. Instead of that, there was a group of boarders at the other end of the hole carrying away the precious stuff in baskets for they, too, have families to support.

The seventy-seven million dollars of the preceding paragraph was not the entire annual crop. This sum was paid over to the get-rich-quick concerns that were closed up by the Postoffice Department. There were many others that did business without using the mails and were undisturbed.

Why is it so easy to sell worthless paper?

Answer No. 1—People want to get rich in a hurry.

Answer No. 2—Golden promises make golden dreams. The fallacy is so hidden we actually are fascinated by it. So we put real money into a gilded dream, and then we wake up.

II.

A promoter was talking one day to an humble individual who did not seem to know much.

"How do you invest your savings?" asked the promoter.

"I put them in a savings bank," said the man.

Never Get Poor, Either

"Well, you will never get rich that way," the promoter said.

"No," answered the humble individual "probably no, but I'll never get poor that way, either."

In view of the countless ways of investing money which promise nothing less than "marvellous returns," it takes a great degree of mind to stick to simple, direct ways of saving. The seventy-seven millions, of which we have been speaking, was not the money of rich men. It belonged to those who could not afford to lose it—to widows, and to wage earners of all classes.

When any one wants you to put your money into a proposition that will make you wealthy in a few weeks, refuse to have anything to do with it, as a matter of principle. It cannot be done. Rosy as the dream is, it is still a rosy dream and nothing more.

One of the fundamental rules of investment is the higher the interest yield, the greater the risk. Bonds of the most conservative character, with the highest guarantee as to safety of principal, yield in the neighborhood of 4 per cent; some three a fraction less or more.

When some one quietly slips you information that you can come in, on the inside, and get thirty per cent, or thereabouts—don't go in. All the doors are locked, and when they throw the victims out of the back window their pockets are turned inside out.

III

The banker puts it this way: Judicious investment is the art of making the most of your money WITHOUT EXPOSING IT TO THE RISK OF LOSS.

"Be Patient," the Great Rule

That kind of safety has to be paid for in [illegible] interest returns.

You may feel that at the rate your surplus funds get into the bank you will never get rich. Remember the remark of the individual: you will never get poor, either. The great rule is "Be Patient."

In an interview recently Mr. Andrew Carnegie is reported to have said this:

The trouble with many men of small means is that they will never make a beginning, and keep putting off investing when they have a nucleus for investing. The goal of the wage-earner in saving should be to acquire one thousand dollars. PRUDENT INVESTING OF SMALL SUMS will help him to obtain this first one thousand dollars. Money grows surprisingly, and if you have none now try the experiment I suggest of getting one thousand dollars and see if I am not right."

Notice that Mr. Carnegie speaks of PRUDENT investing—of what? Of small sums.

Too Tender-Hearted

Mr husband is too tender-hearted altogether to get on," said Mrs. Muggins, dolefully. "It shows his good points, certainly. Why, he won't even speak a cross word to me, nor whip the children, nor even kill a fly."

"Oh, that's nothing," said Mrs. Buggins. "My husband is so tender-hearted that he can't even beat a carpet."

Don't take chances. Get CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS right now. They never fail to make the liver do its duty. They cure constipation, banish indigestion, drive out biliousness and the blues, stop dizziness, clear the complexion, put a healthy glow on the cheek and sparkle in the eyes. The Artillery of the Sky

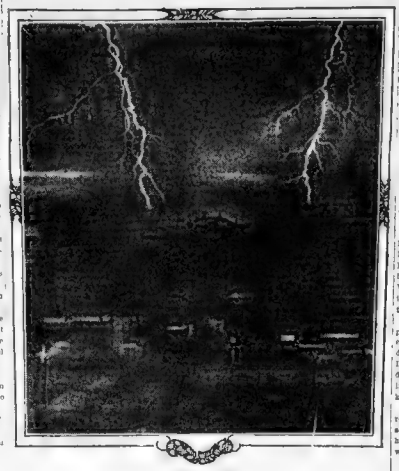
IT CAN SHOOT TEN MILES, BUT IT CANNOT DESTROY A CITY



A Storm Raging Over Paris

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

I was a[illegible] photographer who caught with his camera the picture which we see here of a great storm of thunder and [illegible] over Paris. [illegible] I tried to tell in words [illegible] MILLIAN, a few months ago—[illegible] [illegible] is far more accurate and instructive [illegible] of lightning flash as the [illegible] open country.

The view was taken from the height of Montmartre, looking in a southerly direction over Paris. Away off near the horizon is the lofty dome of the Pantheon, to the left of the centre appears the huge bulk of the Grand Opera House.

Look at the vicious strokes that are descending simultaneously upon the city. The central one seems to strike close to the ancient cathedral of Notre Dame. This remember, was the work of an instant. During the continuance of the storm, hundreds of bolts may have been shot from the sky upon Paris, but no damage was done, although the power of any one of them concentrated might have sufficed to demolish a building.

It is even possible that a greater number of lightning strokes between the earth and the clouds occur when a storm is passing over a large city than when it has only the unobstructed country beneath it. A city is bristling with points—church spires, towers, tall chimneys, etc.—and every such point is being "drawn" lightning like a pointed object, especially if it is composed of metal. A storm may exhaust all its ammunition.

But to this very circumstance resides the security of the city. It is so filled with metallic objects, all of them offering ready paths for lightning, that the latter is weakened by dissipation. A great bolt is instantaneously divided into a vast number of branches, and the force is lost. The inhabitants of the city who keep away from parks and open places are almost as secure against lightning as they would be if they were shut up inside a large box composed of an iron grating. But in the latter it is different, and the need of properly adjusted lightning rods is greater there.

Lightning is greatly dreaded in France, and no wonder, since statistics show that 10,000 people were killed by lightning in that country during the nineteenth century. Nearly all of these perished through neglect of the most ordinary precautions. They may be said to have invited death by placing themselves in the way of its darts.

A remarkable example occurred early this Summer, when a lightning bolt instantly killed one of the greatest noblemen of France, the Marquis of Montebello. In defiance of many warnings he ventured out in a fierce thunderstorm, passing on foot the rich open fields and a [illegible] land. His body was found half stripped of its clothing, near some trees. He carried an umbrella with a steel point, which may have diverted the stroke from a tree to him. Only a week before this fatality a gendarme in a little country [illegible] was killed by lightning when he went into his garden during a thunderstorm.

The reach of lightning is sometimes appalling. It may go a mile, it may even go TEN MILES and reach its victim. It cannot be dodged even when it comes from afar, for it travels with almost the speed of light. Some districts are particularly dangerous because of the existence of deposits of iron beneath the surface of the earth. The neighborhood of a body of water or a stream is always dangerous during a thunderstorm. Even subterranean water may "attract" lightning.

It is rare that lightning enters a room. If it strikes a house the entrance is usually confined to the exterior, the roof or the chimneys. During a violent storm the safest place is the centre of a room, where there is no open communication, such as a fireplace, with the exterior. If you are caught in the open, you may insulate yourself by sitting in a chair with its legs resting in glass tumblers, or, as some do, by lying upon a feather bed. Naturally you would not choose an iron bed.

But these are extreme precautions, and few would think it worth while to adopt them. You are practically safe if you stay indoors, closing windows and other openings, and keeping away from stoves, stovepipes and fireplaces.

If you find yourself perforce out of doors during a thunder storm, avoid the neighborhood of tall, isolated trees, and do not follow a stream or the border of a lake. Keep away, also from wire fences. Most of the destruction of cattle by lightning, in recent years, occurs where they have huddled close to a metallic barrier. Don't carry an umbrella in a thunder storm. The Marquis of Montebello's fate is a sufficient warning on that score. Submit to be soaked with rain rather than take shelter under a tree, and, for your comfort, remember that, in almost any case, you have many chances in your favor to one against you, and that death by lightning is probably the most painless to which a living being can be subjected. It is quicker than the nerves.

SOLD CHEAP MILK IN "HORLICK MILK" JAR

W. W. Pearce, manager at Park and Washington, pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Bell to selling a cheaper grade of malted milk from jars in which "Horlick's Malted Milk" had been blown and when Horlick's Malted Milk was called for. He was fined $25 and costs. The complaint was signed by Food Commissioner Bailey, who is determined to stop the practice of substituting one brand of goods for another without notification of the substitution being made.—Oregon Sunday Journal, Portland, Oregon.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

EXTRACTS FROM MOTHER'S DIARY

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

"EVERYONE," Mrs. Lysander John Appleton always claimed "should keep a diary. Think how enlightening the story of today's doings will be to Posterity."

Mrs. Appleton practices what she preaches. She kept a diary. And Lysander John, while looking in her writing desk for a nail, found it. Being a Man, and Unscrupulous, he read the following from its pages.

January 4—I ironed this morning. Will have to put my blue waist back into the wash because the starch stuck. I noticed Lysander John shaving with extra care today. I feel that he is Drifting Away from Me. I will have to watch him.

January 15—Lysander John sat all of last evening and gazed into the grate. He said he was thinking of business, but I know better. When a man sits and looks into the fire like that, he is thinking of a Woman! When it is business he is thinking of, he has a pencil in his hand. Heard today of a new way to make squash pie.

January 18—Chauncey Devere failed to pass the examination, but it was the teacher's fault. She is so jealous of his wonderful brain she is keeping him back. Lysander John came home a new way today. I must look into that. Some Woman lives on that street, I will wager. Oh, I know the men!

February 2—I am not satisfied with the results of henna. Some say common wash soda will give as pretty a color to the hair. I have a new wrinkle, caused by watching Lysander John.

February 5—Was so proud at the concert tonight. Daysey Mayme sang louder than any one else on the programme. Lysander John must give up cigars to add to the fund for cultivating her voice.

February 7—I am trying to make my husband understand that the room in which we keep the palms is the conservatory, and not the "resting room." It is discouraging work up lifting a man.

February 9—Lysander John said he had to go to the office tonight. I didn't say a word. But I followed him. Of course he went to the office. He did this because he must have known I was on his track. Oh, the duplicity of these men.

February 10—It is all well enough for women's magazines to tell women they must keep the wrinkles away, but how can a woman do it when she has a man to watch? We had cold corned beef for supper.

Lysander John read no more. His anticipation of the great mental stimulant posterity would find in the book overcame him, and he sat like one who is dazed beyond the power of thinking.

System Too Modern

PA had decided that little Johnnie should learn his alphabet in a more interesting manner than had hitherto been the case. With this idea he had invented a system of his own, which was a great improvement on the "A stands for Auntie, B stands for Bat" method.

The first lesson was to be quite short, it was, too.

"Now, then, Johnnie," said pater-familias, "I stands for Johnnie."

"I stands for Johnnie," said the child.

"M stands for Me," went on his father.

"M stands for You," said Johnnie.

"No, no; Y stands for You," corrected his father.

"No; I for me!" exclaimed Johnnie.

Then father found it was bedtime.

We are pleased to announce that a satisfactory settlement has been effected with our waiters and cooks, and that they return to work this morning, having individually signed an agreement not to leave our employ without ten days' notice.

We wish to thank the public for their patience the past few days and to thank our loyal employees who have stood by us.

As is known, our service was interrupted, without a moment's warning, by certain of our waiters and cooks, who unwisely left our employ before learning from us, by conference, that we would grant them the additional time off desired, not only at the Touraine, but also at the Parker House and Young's Hotel. Upon learning from us this decision, a mutual agreement has been signed, and our guest- will henceforth find our service at its usual standard.

THERE was a sound as of settling coal. Only at night would one expect to hear so slight a sound as that in a prominent pile of noisy children. But the moment cleared to be propitious, and it not only attracted the attention of Sweetwater on his side of the wall, but it struck the ear of Brotherson also. With an ejaculation as bitter as it was impatient he roused himself and gathered up the letters. Sweetwater could hear the successive rustlings as he bundled them up in his hand. Then came another silence—then the lifting of a stove lid.

Sweetwater had not been wrong in his secret apprehension. His identification with his unimpressionable neighbor's mood had shown him what to expect. These letters—these innocent and precious outpourings of a rare and womanly soul—the only conceivable open season to the hard-boiled nature he found himself pitted against, would soon be resolved into a curbling puff of smoke.

But the lid was thrust back, and the letters remained in hand. Mortal strength has its limit. Even Brotherson could not shut down that lid on words which might have been meant for him, harshly as he had repelled the idea.

The pause which followed told little; but when Sweetwater heard the man within move with characteristic energy to the door, turn the key and step back again to his place at the table, he knew that the danger moment had passed and that these letters were about to be read, not casually, but seriously, as indeed their contents merited.

This caused Sweetwater to feel serious himself. Upon what result might he calculate. What would happen to this hardy soul when the fact he so scornfully repudiated was borne in upon him, and he saw that the disdain which had antagonized him was a mere device—a cloak to hide the secret heart of love and super womanly devotion? Hey death—Hittie as Brotherson would believe it up till now—had been his personal loss—the greatest which can befall man. When he came to see this—when the modest fervor of his unusual nature began to dawn upon him in those self-revelations, would the result be remorse, or just the deadening and final extinction of whatever tenderness he may have retained for her memory?

Impossible to tell. The balance of probability hung even. Sweetwater recognized this, and rising, breathless, to his bodyfeet, Fain would he have seen, as well as heard, Mr. Brotherson read the final letter standing. As it soon became public property I will give it here, just as it afterwards appeared in the columns of the greedy journals.

"Beloved:

"When I sit, as I often do, in perfect quiet under the stars, and dream that you are looking at them, too, not for hours as I do, but for one full moment in which your thoughts are with me as wholly as mine are with you, I feel that the bond between us, unseen by the world and possibly not wholly recognized by ourselves, is instinct with the same power which links together the eternities.

"I seem to have always been to have known no beginning, only a budding, an efflorescence, the visible product of a hidden but always present reality. A month ago and I was ignorant, even, of your name. Now, you seem the best known to me, the best understood, of God's creatures. One afternoon of perfect companionship—one flash of strong emotion, if with its deep, true insight into each other's souls, and the miracle was wrought. We had met, and henceforth, parting would mean separation only, and not the severing of a mutual bond. One hand, and only one, could do that to me. I will not name that hand. For us there is naught ahead but life.

"Thus do I ease my heart in the silence which conditions impose upon us. Some day I shall hear your voice again, and then"—

The paper dropped from the reader's hand. It was several minutes before he took up another.

This one, as it happened, antedated the other, as will appear on reading it:

"My friend:

"I said that I could not write to you—that we must wait. You were willing; but there is much to be accomplished, and the silence may be long. My father is not an easy man to please, but he desires my happiness and will listen to my plea when the right hour comes. When you have won your place—when you have shown yourself to be the man I feel you to be, then my father will recognize your worth, and the way will be cleared, despite the obstacles which may intervene.

"But meantime! Ah, you will not know it, but words will rise when the heart must find utterance. What the lip cannot utter, nor the looks reveal, those pages shall hold in sacred trust for you till the day when my father will place my hand in yours, with heart-felt approval.

"Is it a folly? A woman's weak reading of the strong silence I want? You may say so some day; but somehow I doubt it—I doubt it."

A Bachelor's Diary

He Finds Himself Engaged to Miss Leonard

By MAX.

AUGUST 24.—I Wish, Diary, that I had the brains and ability to write for the newspapers. I would like to use the power of my pen in getting a certain question forever disposed of.

The newspapers decide the complexion of the inhabitants of Mars, and how much grief a woman should give her baby, but they let this question I want settled severely alone.

It is this:

WHEN IS A MAN ENGAGED?

The answer seems easy to you, does it? You will say glibly, "When he proposes marriage, and the woman accepts."

But no man proposes marriage. At least very few do. He calls a few times, he takes the girl out occasionally, and he pays her an idle compliment or two. All this is done in a pleasant dream, and when he wakes up he is standing before a preacher.

He didn't intend to become engaged. Perhaps he can't afford marriage, and perhaps he doesn't really love the girl. He just likes her. She is pleasant and pretty to look upon, and youth and environment make drifting easy, and so he just drifts.

And finds himself marooned on Matrimonial Isle.

Why, I once knew a man who was married and seemingly happy, yet he never asked his wife to marry him. He had been transferred to another town, and called to bid her good-by.

How It Happened

He was going next morning, as said, "It will hurry me," she replied, "but I can be ready by then."

And they were married next morning and she went with him to his new home.

I have heard men claim that all a man has to do is to say to a girl that he is tired of boarding and she takes it as an avowal that he wants her to be his cook for the rest of life.

This may sound like slander, Diary, but it is only what all the married men say.

SHINY NOSES CURED

Nothing spoils a woman's appearance more than a shiny nose. At last a remedy has been found to entirely cure it. The old method of "slapping on" powder is not only ineffective, but has ruined many pretty skin. If you would like to be able to go through life and never have to bother again about having a shiny nose, if you wish to overcome the disfigurement of enlarged pores, if you would appreciate an exquisite and refined complexion, just send your name and address with a two-cent stamp for particulars addressed to Rosalee Laboratory, Dept. 1184, Delta St, Providence, R.I.

He Awakes

It was not until next day that I really saw any rocks ahead. I was sitting in the office reading the baseball news when the door opened, and in walked the siren of the evening before, with the proprietary air of the man who holds the mortgage and is about to foreclose.

She had come, she said, to let me take her out to lunch. "I must get used to all your likes and dislikes," she said, with a gay little laugh; "I find myself engaged to marry a man of whom I know so little that I don't know if he prefers coffee or tea!"

I gasped. Really, I had almost forgotten the little preludes to the evening before. Then, she had said something about marrying her, and the only reply I made was to grab her in my arms and kiss her.

Does that make me engaged? Does the curiously gallant desire to give a woman a caress for every one she voluntarily gives constitute a promise to marry her?

Is it of these little silken threads of idle love-making the heavy yoke of marriage is made?

I know that marriage is good for a man. I realize that it is a heave-scent dispensation, but at least a man should have the right of selecting the sort of an angel he wants handed out to him. And Beth Leonard is not my choice.

When she put her brave arms around my neck and kissed me, and said, "You will marry me, won't you, Max?" I—well, I did what any other man would have done under the circumstances. I just drifted!

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE STREET, Aug. 29.—Midday.—The Boston market was fairly steady at the start, with North Butte a little higher, Butte & Superior unchanged and prices in general not showing any great variation. The decline in the price of copper metal in London was depressing for copper issues during the first hour. Wolverine went off 1½, Calumet & Arizona a point, and there were losses for North Butte, Copper Range, U. S. Smelting, Amalgamated, Chino, Isle Royale, Consolidated and Shannon.

The market was dull as well as lower.

The Boston News Bureau prints a New York dispatch about the raising of the Bank of England discount rate, which says: "An advance during August is so unusual that it has always had special significance. The last time it was done was during the crisis of 1907, and previous to that the only record of recent years was in 1900, when the British Government was financing the Boer War. The present increased rate is not abnormal, although it is above the average for a like period of year when money everywhere is usually at the lowest figures of the year. The difference, however, is that the bank expects a serious strain upon its resources unusually early in the Fall, and is protecting itself. By advancing its rate it could undo present conditions, shift the demand for gold to the United States, where our inefficient currency system places us at a disadvantage, and it is entirely probable that engagements of gold here for Brazil which has hitherto been drawing on London, will be reported shortly."

New York Irregular at Start.

Prices ruled irregular when the New York market opened. The raising of the Bank of England's minimum discount rate to 4 per cent. had been expected and discounted. It made the London market heavy, however. American stocks there were at first little affected by the general speculative mass at the British capital, holding above New York parity in early trading. The London market, in fact, grew firmer in general in the afternoon.

In New York Steel common opened ½ higher and Amalgamated lost ¼ at the start. Reading and American Smelting were unchanged. Copper issues were dragged because of the over-sea decline in the metal price, Canadian Pacific, which was strong in London, reflected its firmness as in New York, advancing ½. Union Pacific was sold heavily, losing ¾. Uncertainty as to the developments at today's meeting of the Louisville & Nashville directorate caused a decline in that issue. At the end of fifteen minutes it had lost a full point. Southern Railway gained ¼, while Southern Pacific moved up ⅛. Pennsylvania lost ⅜.

The curb was active.

United States Motor continued under pressure, the preferred selling down to 11¼ against 13½ yesterday, while the common was offered at 3⅝ against the last sale on Friday at 4.

The New York sub-treasury gained $1,813,000 from the banks yesterday and has gained $5,000,000 since Friday.

Copper Down in London.

The London copper metal market weakened at the beginning, spot opening the lower, while futures were off 7s 6d.

It is said, however, that European consumers had themselves with ample good in their respective lines, but with much smaller stocks of copper than they usually carry for manufacturing purposes.

It was stated in New York this morning that the first low-priced sales were made yesterday and that the price was 12¾ cents a pound. Producers are said to be averse to a further rise. They think it might check consumption and there is plenty of profit for them at the present rate.

There were heavy sales for October delivery.

Financial News in Brief.

The Bank of England has advanced its minimum rate of discount 1 per cent. to 4 per cent. The 3 per cent. rate had been in effect since May 9 last. The bank's weekly statement shows its proportion of reserve to liabilities is now 49.50 per cent. against 49.80 last week and this compares with a decline from 57½ to 56⅞ per cent. this week last year.

Senator Burne predicts that the parcels post business of this country will amount to $500,000,000 annually in ten or fifteen years. The parcels post, which will be operative on January 1, is being organized. The country will be divided into 250 sections. Every postmaster will probably have a tariff sheet in the form of a bound book.

United States Labor Commissioner O'Neil is now investigating how much more the consumer is paying for coal because of the mining suspension in the Spring. It is claimed that the mine operators have added twenty cents a ton to their price to reimburse them for more pay granted miners.

For years it has been expected that a port would be built at Montauk Point and such a terminus would be a great competitor with Boston. But E. Platt Strahan and other eminent engineers say the force of the sea is too great to enable them to construct a safe harbor there.

The Sun Age says today: "Broadening activity in pig iron has been the prominent feature of the market for the past week and the buying movement now under way is one of the largest in years. Prices are up in all district, and heavy sales have been made at the higher levels for delivery in the first quarter and the first half of next year."

The United States Steel Corporation's order for 1913 now aggregate about 250,000 tons.

The editor of the London Statist cables Hearst newspapers that the British have no desire to interfere with control of the American mercantile marine because of the Panama Canal. "But," he says, "the free passage of ships through the canal is not the same as bestowing the free passage of American vessels means that foreign ships will pay the total cost of maintaining the canal. A bounty means that all ships would share the burden. Free passage means that foreign ships will be made to pay a bounty to American ships; that there will not be entire equality, and that there will be discrimination."

The rumor that the New York Central will soon issue bonds for $75,000,000 is denied and it is also stated that that road does not contemplate any new financing of any kind this year.

Chicago packers declare that the beef sold in London at lower prices than are charged in this country is not the same meat.

It is expected that Sears-Roebuck store sales for August will show an increase of from 15 to 20 per cent. over the business done in the same month in 1911.

The stock of the Alaska Gold Mines Co. has been admitted to the unqualified department of the Boston Curb Exchange, as if and when issued.

ARRAIGN WOMAN AS JEWEL THIEF

Mrs. Lydia Tanswell, the fifty-five-year-old widow of a wealthy Manchester, N. H., merchant, was arraigned today after being brought from Toronto, Can., on a charge of larceny of $2,250 in jewels.

Judge Murray in the Boston Municipal Court held her in $4,000 bail for a continued hearing next Monday.

The charge was sworn to by M. N. Smith, a member of the Smith-Patterson Company. Mrs. Tanswell waived extradition and returned with Inspector Edward Conway from Toronto.

Mrs. Tanswell was well known at the Smith-Patterson Company, and the jewelry said to have been stolen is alleged to have been obtained by her on memorandum, her stated intention, according to the police, being to sell it to a wealthy customer in Buffalo. The clerk allowed her to select $2,250 worth of rings, brooches and bracelets.

News of the Auto World

By J. C. KERRIGON.

The Thomas car which won the race from New York to Paris against all comers and which is now in the technical service of the Thomas Company, arrived in Boston Tuesday afternoon on its visit to the Thomas agents and owners throughout the country. The car left the factory some three months ago and during that time has been visiting the Thomas establishments in the East and will spend a short period here in Boston, prior to its trip through Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and into Canada.

This car is being used as an object lesson, exemplifying the durability and efficiency of Thomas cars. It is being driven on this trip by Neil Nohr, who is accompanied by Robert Norcross, the two men having made exceptionally good records with the car since they left the factory on this trip.

This is by no means the first time that the round-the-world car has been in Boston, it originally coming here shortly after it finished the great international race, being given a reception by Governor Draper.

The car has not been changed one iota from the condition in the technical service department and Manager Norman Hoday of the Boston branch is parodonably very proud of its performance in the past and its present condition.

The Oldsmobile Company is at last comfortably settled in its new salesroom and service station on Commonwealth avenue, and Manager Snell feels that he is now in better position than ever to do an immense amount of business. In his previous quarters he was somewhat cramped and his business was under two roofs, but with everything concentrated to one point business can be accomplished with even more dispatch and satisfaction. At his new salesroom he is showing a full line of Oldsmobile models and he invites general inspection of both the models and the plant.

E. S. Jordan, sales manager of the Rambler, is in town on a visit to C. P. Rockwell, branch manager of the Thomas H. Jeffer Company. Mr. Jordan is on a trip to the Rambler branches throughout the country, and it is with pleasure that he always comes to Boston, as, through the efforts of the local officials, Boston has been placed in the first position on the Rambler list, and he always expects great things from this section, and in this expectation he has never been disappointed.

W. K. Hadley, sales manager of the Lenox car, has returned to Boston after a 1,278-mile tour in a Lenox car. He went from here to New York, Philadelphia to Baltimore, back over the same route and through all the New England States. He says he never had to make a single adjustment on his car. He came back with a pocket full of orders for 1913 Lenox cars.

All the Tone-quality of the $200 Instruments in this one at $59

—which is the spot cash price, but which includes an outfit of 12 double-disc records (24 selections)

And you can pay for it at the rate of $5 a month

The Offer:

We agree to deliver to any address in Boston, one of these Graionolas, together with an assortment of 12 double-disc records (24 selections) to be selected by us, or by you if you prefer.

The machines and the records will be sent on three days' free trial to any home in the city.

So confident are we that the instrument will please even the most critical, that we agree to refund all money paid by any purchaser who may not in every way be satisfied with the instrument.

This is the first offer of this sort we ever made. We do it now because we intend either to place a Graionola in every home in Boston, or at least give every householder in Boston an opportunity to own one.

The Instrument:

This beautiful Grafonola "Favorite," the first instrument of this latest improved type to be offered at anything like its price, is probably the best that its price will ever buy. It seems pretty clear that the limit has been reached. As a musical instrument, it is all that any musical instrument can be, and all that those costing $200 can claim to be.

The cabinet is built of the choicest mahogany (or of beautiful quarter-sawn oak) polished like the costliest piano.

The "Favorite" plays any size of record—three at one winding, and can be rewound while running, the motor being a powerful triple-spring drive, absolutely silent and always positive and reliable. The tone arm leads the sound waves from the reproducer into the sound chamber, where it is amplified and poured out through the front, subject to reduction in volume by the partial or complete closing of the double doors. The start-and-stop lever is combined with a speed regulator lever, all in handy reach.

The turn-table stands above the top of the cabinet when the lid is raised, admitting easy access to the record and needle.

The Records:

The outfit of records we have selected from the best selling and most popular of all classes, and includes the famous Sextette from "Lucia" and the equally famous Quartette from "Rigoletto," which ought to be extremely interesting to any of your friends who own talking machines and have paid $13 for those two selections alone. You are at liberty to make your own selection of records if you prefer.

In addition to those 24 selections, we will give you, free, one of our "Demonstration" double-disc records, which everybody admits is worth at least sixty cents of any man's money. All of these records are guaranteed to be superior to all others in tone, in surface and in durability. They will outwear any other make of records almost two to one.

It is an instrument that any man, of any means, may be proud to own and use for a lifetime.

It Is a Good Thing for This Country to Have at Least One Man and One Set of Newspapers Not Afraid to Tell the Truth

The Archbold-Standard Oil-Penrose-Foraker Revelations Made by W. R. Hearst in Hearst's Magazine Have Been Most Valuable to the Citizens of This Country.

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner.

There is a good Italian saying, "Give Light, and the People Will Find the Way."

The light that the people need is information, FACTS, insight into their government and especially into that which is hidden.

While facts are hidden, the people cannot find their way. If it were not for the newspapers that are truthful, and for a few men that do not fear the truth or those that hate it, there would be little light for the people, and little hope of finding the path in the maze of graft, corruption, monopoly, bribery and dishonest control of government through which this nation is wandering.

Our readers certainly appreciate the value of publicity and the value of truth telling. They have built up the Hearst newspapers, and the Hearst magazines—they constitute the millions of circulation, the gigantic family of readers from which W. R. Hearst gets the power to scatter truth, and to frighten rascals.

The politics of this country and the prospect of good government owe a great debt to that revelation of Standard Oil activity, bribery and shameless corruption, managed by John D. Archbold, and shared by Penrose, Foraker, Sibley and others supposed to be working for the people.

Foraker has been driven out of public life. Penrose will soon be out of public life. Archbold, when he understands what the people think of him—either through criminal proceedings or otherwise—will cease his activities, his check distribution, his insolent attempts to interfere with elections, his shameless corruption of the people's officials.

Even the newspapers naturally dishonest—the so-called "conservative newspapers"—that belong to Archbold, just as Foraker and Penrose belong to him, have been compelled through very shame to publish the facts with which Hearst has supplied them. As they will be compelled to publish the further facts with which he has supplied them.

In his recent cable from Europe W. R. Hearst advised Penrose, Archbold and the others to tell the whole truth—promising that HE would do it if they did not.

Mr. Hearst has "given the people light." He has shown them which of their officials were rotten and dishonest. He has pointed out and convicted the Trust managers, guilty of wholesale bribery; he has rendered a great service to this country through his newspapers and his magazines, and the people know it.

Mr. Hearst's work has been of especial value because his revelations have been absolutely non-partisan. Democratic, Republican, Progressive, or what not, has made no difference to him. The truth as fast as possible has been given to the public.

And through the Hearst publications the public has learned that dishonesty in this country is of no party, IT MANAGES AND BUYS EVERY PARTY.

Mr. Howe, in Vermont, reminding the people that railroads and other corporations rule and cheat by paying in taxes less than half what individual citizens pay, describes part of our system admirably as follows:

> Now, ladies and gentlemen, is that a square deal? Was that law enacted by the Republican party? No, no. Was it enacted by the Democratic party? No, no. Was it enacted by any political party? No, no. Whom was it enacted by? It was enacted by the crooked politicians who are controlled by the corporations. Was it enacted in the daytime? Oh, no. Was it enacted on cold water? Oh, no; they had better stuff than that. How long have we been living under that law? Twenty-six years.

That is a good description of the way things are managed in this country. The graft, the dishonesty, and the monopoly are not Democratic, they are not Republican—THEY ARE EXCLUSIVELY AND ESSENTIALLY PLUTOCRATIC.

Men like Archbold supply the money, the funds for corruption. Men like Foraker, Penrose and Sibley take this money and use it—some of it being distributed "in the right places" and some of it being carefully kept.

Hundreds of thousands and millions have thus been distributed by the corporations that rob the people through monopoly.

But there promises to come an end, or at least a moderation, in this system—thanks to "the light" given by the publications that W. R. Hearst controls.

There is not a mile of territory in the United States that does not know the name and the work of Hearst and his publications. This causes envy among some editors. But it need cause no envy.

They may have the same standing, and the same power for good, if they will develop the ability to discover the truth AND THE HONESTY TO TELL IT.

THE FLAG

By MINNA IRVING

WHEN of a shirt, a soldier's coat,
And strips of flannel made,
Upon the smoky battle breeze
The flag was first displayed,
Combining in its brave design
The midnight and the morn,
Behold! it barely covered them
A nation newly born.

But since it put the foe to rout
Its stars of glory bright
Have grown so fast that every land
Is guided by their light.
The dauntless stripes of white and red
Fort Stanwix saw unfurled
Above a few intrepid souls
Now shelters all the world.

"Calm yourself, Theodore, I beg! It is most painful to me to see you beating up this young friend of mine! Just think of his open-handed generosity! He was always ready to dig freely—for a consideration! Look at William—there's a quite, inoffensive boy for you! He sleeps almost all the time! I see the Inbad Club is taking in a couple of new members! I understand the club is going to build a lot of cottages on the grounds to accommodate the expected rush during the campaign!"

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

THE MAN OF FIFTY OUT OF A JOB

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Your articles describing experiences of a young man, and now Miss Lee, in their search for a position, are very interesting; but like the plot in a novel, we all knew how it would end, in a position.

But I wonder if you or your readers realize the difficulties encountered by the man around fifty out of a job, and how he would fare in search of one. Be he ever so talented, well educated, of good appearance, experienced, temperate and in other respects a model citizen, all avenues of employment are barred to him. My own experience in Boston the past Winter enables me to make this broad statement, and the employment bureaus will bear me out. The exceptions to this rule are very few. This letter is to urge your paper to espouse the cause of the deserving middle-aged man by an article along the lines of your other two. C. S. A.

A MIGHTY EDUCATOR.

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—We are converts to the Progressive party and principles, but are delighted to read your editorials. We must say that after criticising the AMERICAN for years for sensationalism, now we see your or our changed viewpoint that sensationalism is a mighty educator, and that all great men and movements have been so dominated. Yours is a deserted and will be an increasing success. Good health and long life to Mr. Hearst.

Sincerely,
WM. D. GAY.

John W. Redmond Strikes Us as a Queer Sort of Public Servant

Mr. Redmond Lives at Newport in Vermont. Almost at the Canada Line. He Has Been on the Republican Stump Every Night Denouncing the Democratic Candidate for Governor for Having TRUTHFULLY Pointed Out That the Farmer Pays the Taxes of Vermont, While the Railroads Go Almost Free of Taxes. AND JOHN W. REDMOND IS CHAIRMAN OF THE VERMONT PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION!

One of the marked characteristics of the standpatter in recent American politics is his bull-headedness, his POLITICAL BLINDNESS.

We today read with amazement of the tactics of those who, fifty years ago, criticised Lincoln and would have belittled him. We wonder why these men did not see Lincoln, and understand him, and love him, as we do now.

So it will amaze the American of fifty years from now that the standpatter, the reactionary, the Old Guardsman—call him what you will—did not earlier sense the temper of the people of OUR day.

With striking lessons of this temper all about him, warnings, admonitions, the Old Guardsman stubbornly continues to play the game with his OLD BOLDNESS.

A typical example of this blindness, this bull-headedness of the political Old Guard, is the performance, in the Vermont campaign now rapidly drawing to a close, of John W. Redmond of Newport, in that State.

When the progressive young Democratic candidate for Governor, Harland B. Howe of St. Johnsbury, went before the people to point out to them the inequalities of the Vermont system of taxation, and particularly to show how these inequalities are ALL IN FAVOR OF THE RAILROAD, TELEGRAPH, TELEPHONE AND EXPRESS COMPANIES, it was John W. Redmond of Newport who took the stump to defend the System and CHAMPION THE RAILROADS.

And who, do you suppose, IS John W. Redmond?

John W. Redmond is a SERVANT OF THE PEOPLE OF VERMONT.

John W. Redmond is the CHAIRMAN OF THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION OF VERMONT, which, maintained at the PUBLIC expense, stands, or OUGHT to stand, BETWEEN the people and the railroads.

The contention of Harland B. Howe, Democratic candidate for Governor of Vermont, appears to be sustained by all the public records of Vermont. So sustained, the chairman of the Public Service Commission, IF HE HAS ANY PLACE WHATEVER IN A POLITICAL CAMPAIGN, SHOULD BE WITH THE PEOPLE.

The people of Massachusetts, like the people of New Hampshire and the people of other States, sometimes find fault—and reasonably—with existing conditions which appear more or less intolerable.

But we know of no State in the Union, in the year 1912, SAVE VERMONT, which would tolerate such an exhibition as that which John W. Redmond, chairman of the Public Service Commission, has been giving nightly in the Green Mountain State for the past two weeks.

And we miss our Yankee guess, if, when the returns are in next Tuesday night, whatever may be left of the once Grand Old Party in Vermont does not PLACE THE BLAME WHERE IT BELONGS. That is, in our opinion, on the gang which has for several years manipulated Republican State conventions and thimble-rigged legislation at Montpelier IN THE INTEREST OF THE CORPORATIONS AND AGAINST THE INTEREST OF THE COMMON MAN.

Whether they vote next Tuesday for Harland B. Howe of St. Johnsbury, progressive Democrat, or Fraser Metzger of Randolph, Bull Moose Progressive, the every-day Republicans of Vermont are DONE WITH THE RING.
